TO A LADY.

Occasioned by the arrival of HER ROYAL HIGHNESS.

M A D A M, to all your censures I submit,
And frankly own I should long since have writ:
You told me, silence would be thought a crime,
And kindly strove to teaze me into rhyme;
No more let trisling themes your Muse employ,
Nor lavish verse to paint a semale toy:
No more on plains with rural damsels sport,
But sing the glories of the British court,

By your commands and inclination sway'd,
I call'd th' unwilling Muses to my aid;
Resolv'd to write, the noble theme I chose,
And to the Princess thus the Poem rose.

- " Aid me, bright Phœbus; aid, ye facred Ninc;
- " Exalt my genius, and my verse refine.
- " My strains with Carolina's name I grace,
- "The lovely parent of our royal race.
- " Breathe foft, ye winds, ye waves in filence ffeep;
- "Let prosp'rous breezes wanton o'er the deep,
- " Swell the white fails, and with the streamers play,
- " To wast her gently o'er the watry way."

Here I to Neptune form'd a pompous pray'r,
To rein the winds, and guard the royal Fair;
Eid the blue Tritons found their twifted shells,
And call the Nereids from their pearly cells.

Thus my warm zeal had drawn the Muse along. Yet knew no method to conduct her song:

I then resolv'd some model to pursue,

Perus'd French critics, and began anew.

Long open panegyric drags at best,

And praise is only praise when well address'd.

Straight Horace for some lucky ode I sought;
And all along I trac'd him thought by thought.
This new performance to a friend I show'd;
For shame, says he, what, imitate an ode!
I'd rather ballads write, and Grubstreet lays,
Than pillage Casar for my patron's praise:
One common sate all imitator's share,
To save mince-pies, and cap the grocer's ware,
Ver'd at the charge, I to the slames commit
Rhymes, similies, Lords names, and ends of wit;
In blotted stanzas serapes of odes expire,
And sustian mounts in pyramids of sire.

Ladies, to you I next inscrib'd my lay,
And writ a letter in familiar way:
For still impatient till the Princess came,
You from description wish'd to know the dame.
Each day my pleasing labour-larger grew,
For still new graces open'd to my view.
'Twelve lines ran on to introduce the theme,
And then I thus pursu'd the growing scheme:

- "Beauty and wit were fure by Nature join'd,
- "And charms are emanations of the mind;
- "The foul transpiercing through the shining frame,
- " Forms all the graces of the Princely Dame:
- " Benevolence her conversation guides,
- " Smiles on her cheek, and in her eye refides.
- "Such harmony upon her tongue is found,
- " As foftens English to Italian found:
- "Yet in those sounds such sentiments appear,
- " As charm the judgment, while they soothe the ear.
- " Religion's chearful flame her bosom warms,
- " Calms all her hours, and brightens all her charms."
- " Henceforth, ye fair, at chapel mind your pray'rs,
- " Nor catch your lover's eyes with artful airs;
- " Restrain your looks, kneel more, and whisper less,
- " Nor most devoutly criticize on dress.
- " From her form all your characters of life,
- "The tender mother, and the faithful wife.
- Oft have I feen her little infant train,
- "The lovely promise of a future reign;
- "Observ'd with pleasure every dawning grace,
- "And all the mother opening in their face;
- "The fon shall add new honours to the line,
- 'And early with paternal virtues shine;
- When he the tale of Andenard repeats,
- "His little heart with emulation beats:
- "With conquests yet to come his bosom glows,
- Be dreams of triumphs and of vanquish'd foes.
- ' Each year with arts shall store his rip'ning brain,
- "And from his grandfire he shall learn to reign."

Thus far I'd gone: propitious rifing gales.

Now bid the failor hoift the swelling fails.

Fair Carolina lands; the cannons roar,

White Albion's cliffs resound from shore to shore.

Behold the bright original appear,

All praise is faint when Carolina's near.

Thus to the nation's joy, but poet's cost,

The Princess came, and my new plan was lost.

Since all my schemes were baulk'd, my last resort, I left the Muses to frequent the court; Pensive each night, from room to room I walk'd, To one I bow'd, and with another talk'd; Enquir'd what news, or fuch a lady's name, And did the next day, and the next, the fame. Places, I found, were daily given away, And yet no friendly gazette mention'd Gay. I ask'd a friend what method to pursue; He cry'd, I want a place as well as you. Another ask'd me, why I had not writ; A poet owes his fortune to his wit. Straight I reply'd, With what a courtly grace; Flows easy verse from him that has a place! Had Virgil ne'er at court improv'd his strains. He still bad fung of flocks and homely swains; And had not Horace sweet preferment found. The Roman lyre had never learnt to found,

B

Once ladies fair in homely guise I sung,

And with their names wild woods and mountains rung.

Oh teach me now to strike a softer strain,. The court resines the language of the plain. You must, cries one, the ministry rehearse, and with each patriot's name prolong your verse. It fure this truth to poets should be known.

That praising all alike, is praising none.

Another told me, if I wish'd success,

To some distinguish'd lord I must address;

One whose high virtues speak his noble blood,

One always zealous for his country's good;

Where valour and strong eloquence unite,
In council cautious, resolute in sight;

Whose generous temper prompts him to defend,

And patronize the man that wants a friend.

You have, 'tis true, the noble patron shown;

But I, alas! am to Argyle unknown.

t,

ns

Still every one I met in this agreed,
That writing was my method to succeed;
But now preferments so posses'd my brain,
That scarce I could produce a fingle strain:
Indeed I sometimes hammer'd out a line,
Without connection as without design.
One morn upon the Princes's this I writ,
An epigram that boasts more truth than wit.

"The pomp of titles easy faith might shake, be scorn'd an empire for religion's sake:

" For this, on earth the British crown is giv'n,

"And an immortal crown decreed in heav'n."

Again, while GEORGE's virtues rais'd my thought, The following lines prophetic fancy wrought. " Shall rife in fong, and warm a future age;

"Look back thro' time, and, rapt in wonder, trace

"The glorious feries of the Brunswick race.

" From the first George the godlike kings descend,

" A line which only with the world shall end.

"The next a gen'rous prince renown'd in arms,

" And bless'd, long bless'd in Carolina's charms;

" From these the rest. 'Tis thus secure in peace,

"We plow the fields, and reap the year's increase:

" Now Commerce, wealthy goddess, rears her head,

" And bids Britannia's fleets their canvas spread;

"Unnumber'd fhips the peopled ocean hide,

" And wealth returns with each revolving tide."

Here paus'd the fullen Muse, in haste I dress'd, And through the croud of needy courtiers press'd; Though unsuccessful, happy whilst I see, Those eyes that glad a nation, shine on me,

Thence o'er wide shrubby heaths, and surrow'd lanes, We come, where Thames divides the meads of Stanes.

We ferry'd o'er; for late the winter's flood
Shook her frail bridge, and tore her piles of wood.
Prepar'd for war, now Bagfhot Heath we crofs,
Where broken gamesters oft repair their loss.
At Hartley-Row the foaming bit we prest,
While the fat landlord welcom'd ev'ry guest.
Supper was ended, healths the glasses crown'd,
Our host extoll'd his wine at ev'ry round,

Let travellers the morning vigils keep:
The morning rose, but we lay fast asleep.
Twelve tedious miles we bore the sultry sun,
And Popham-Lane was scarce in sight by one:
The straggling village harbour'd thieves of old,
'Twas here the stage-coach'd lass resign'd her gold;
That gold which had in London purchas'd gowns,
And sent her home a Belle to country towns.
But robbers haunt no more the neighbouring wood
Here unown'd infants find their daily food;
For should the maiden-mother nurse her son,

Sutton we pass, and leave her spacious down, And with the setting sun reach Stockbridge town. D'er our parch'd tongue the rich metheglin glides, And the red dainty trout our knife divides. Sad melancholy ev'ry visage wears; What, no election come in seven long years! Of all our race of mayors, shall Snow alone Be by Sir Richard's dedication known? Our streets no more with tides of ale shall float, Nor coblers feast three years upon one vote.

Nor from the chilly dews at night defend:
With wondrous art, he counts the straggling slock,
And by the sun informs you what's a clock.
How are our shepherds fall'n from antient days!
No Amaryllis chaunts alternate lays;
From her no list'ning echoes learn to sing,
Nor with his reed the jocund vallies ring.

What sempstress has not prov'd thy seissars good? From hence first came th' intriguing riding-hood. Amid three boarding-schools well stock'd with misses shall three knight-errants starve for want of kisses!

O'er the green turf the miles slide swift away,
And Blandford ends the labours of the day.
The morning rose; the supper reck'ning paid,
And our due sees discharg'd to man and maid,
The ready oftler near the stirrup stands,
And as we mount, our half-pence load his hands.

Now the steep hill fair Dorchester o'erlooks, Border'd by meads, and wash'd by filver brooks. Here sleep my two companions eyes supprest, And propt in elbow chairs they snoring rest: I weary fit, and with my pencil trace Their painful postures, and their eyeless face; Then dedicate each glass to some fair name, And on the fash the diamond scrawls my flame. Now o'er true Roman way our horfes found, Gravius would kneel, and kifs the facred ground. On either side low fertile vallies lie, The distant prospects tire the travelling eye. Through Bridport's stony lanes our rout we take, And the proud steep descend to Morcombe's lake. As herses pass'd, our landlord robb'd the pall, And with the mournful 'scutcheon hung his hall. On unadulterate wine we here regale, And strip the lobster of his scarlet mail.

We climb'd the hills, when stary night arose, And Axminster affords a kind repose.

If women's geer such pleasing dreams incite, Lend us your smocks, ye damsels, ev'ry night! We rise, our beards demand the barber's art; A semale enters, and performs the part. The weighty golden chain adorns her neck, And three gold rings her skilful hand bedeck: Smooth o'er our chin her easy singers move, Soft as when Venus stroak'd the beard of Jove.

Now from the steep, midst scatter'd farms and groves,

Dur eye through Honiton's fair valley roves. Behind us foon the bufy town we leave, Where finest lace industrious lasses weave. Now fwelling clouds roll'd on; the rainy load. And Tuttle-fields record his fimple lays;

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE

Ggn:

WILLIAM PULTENEY, Efg.

PULT'NEY, methinks you blame my breach of word;

What, cannot Paris one poor page afford?
Yes, I can fagely, when the times are past,
Laugh at those follies which I strove to taste,
And each amusement, which we shar'd, review,
Pleas'd with mere talking, since I talk to you.
But how shall I describe in humble prose,
Their balls, assemblies, operas, and beaus?
In prose! you ery: Oh no, the Muse must aid,
And leave Parnassus for the Tuilleries' shade;
Shall he who late Britannia's city trod,
And led the draggled Muse, with pattens shod,
Through dirty lanes, and alleys doubtful ways,
Results of the draggled to write, when Paris asks his lays!

Well then, I'll try. Descend, ye beauteous Nine, in all the colours of the rainbow shine:
Let sparkling stars your neck and ear adorn,
Lay on the blushes of the crimson morn:
so may ye balls and gay assemblies grace,
And at the opera claim the foremost place.

Trav'lers should ever fit expression chuse,
Nor with low phrase the lofty theme abuse.
When they describe the state of eastern lords,
Pomp and magnificence should swell their words;
And when they paint the serpent's scaly pride,
Their lines should his, their numbers smoothly slide;
But they, unmindful of poetic rules,
Describe alike Mockaws, and great Moguls.
Dampier would thus, without ill-meaning satire,
Dress forth in simple tyle the Petit-maitre.

" In Paris, there's a race of animals,

" (I've feen them at their operas and balls)

"They stand erect, they dance whene'er they walk,

" Monkeys in action, parroquets in talk;

- "They're crown'd with feathers, like the cockatoo,
- "And, like camelions, daily change their hue; "From patches justly plac'd they borrow graces,
- "And with vermilion lacker o'er their faces:

" This custom, as we visibly discern,

"They, by frequenting ladies toilettes, learn."
Thus might the trav'ler eafy truth impart.
Into the subject let me nobly flart.

How happy lives the man, how fure to charm, Whose knot embroider'd flutters down his arm! On him the ladies cast the yielding glance, Sigh in his songs, and languish in his dance; While wretched is the wit, contemn'd, forlorn, Whose gummy hat no scarlet plumes adorn; No broider'd flowers his worsted ankle grace, Nor cane emboss'd with gold directs his pace; No lady's favour on his sword is hung. What though Apollo dictate from his tongue?

His wit is spiritless and void of grace,
Who wants th' affurance of brocade and lace.
While the gay sop genteely talks of weather,
The fair in raptures doat upon his feather;
Like a court-lady though he write and spell,
His minuet step was fashion'd by † Marcell;
He dresses, sences. What avails to know?
For women chuse their men, like silks, for show.
Is this the thing, you cry, that Paris boasts?
Is this the thing renown'd among our toasts?
For such a flutt'ring sight we need not roam;
Our own assemblies shine with these at home.

Let us into the field of beauty start;
Beauty's a theme that ever warm'd my heart.
Think not, ye fair, that I the sex accuse:
How shall I spare you, prompted by the Muse?
(The Muses all are prudes) she rails, she frets,
Amidst this sprightly nation of coquettes.
Yet let not us their loose coquett'ry blame;
Women of ev'ry nation are the same.

You ask me, if Parisian dames, like ours,
With rattling dice profane the Sunday's hours;
If they the gamester's pale-ey'd vigils keep,
And stake their honour while their husbands sleep?
Yes, Sir; like English roasts, the dames of France
Will risk their income on a single chance.
Nannette last night a tricking Pharaon play'd,
The cards the taillier's sliding hand obey'd;
To-day her neck no brilliant circle wears,
Nor the ray-darting pendant loads her ears.

Why does old Chloris an affembly hold? Chloris each night divides the sharper's gold. Corinna's cheek with frequent losses burns, And no bold Trent le va her fortune turns. Ah! too rash virgin! where's thy virtue flown? She pawns her person for the sharper's loan. Yet who with justice can the fair upbraid, Whose debts of honour are so duely paid?

But let me not forget the toilette's cares,
Where art each morn the languid cheek repairs:
This red's too pale, nor gives a distant grace;
Madame to day puts on her opera face;
From this we scarce extract the milkmaid's bloom,
Bring the deep dye that warms across the room:
Now slames her cheek, so strong her charms prevail,
That on her gown the silken rose looks pale!
Not but that France some native beauty boasts,
Clermont and Charolois might grace our toasts.

When the fweet-breathing Spring unfolds the buds, Love flies the dufky town for shady woods. Then Totenham-fields with roving beauty swarm, And Hamstead balls the city virgin warm, Then Chelsea's meads o'erhear perfidious vows, And the press'd grass destrauds the grazing cows. 'Tis here the same; but in a higher sphere, For ev'n court ladies sin in open air. What eit with a gallant would trust his spouse Beneath the tempting shade of Greenwich boughs? What peer of France would let his duches rove, Where Boulogne's closest woods invite to love? But here no wife can blast her husband's same, Cuckold is grown an honourable name.

tretch'd on the grafs the shepherd fighs his pain. and on the grafs what shepherd fighs in vain? On Chloe's lap here Damon laid along, Melts with the languish of her am'rous song: There Iris flies Palæmon through the glade, Nor trips by chance-'till in the thickest shade; Here Celimene defends her lips and breast, or kiffes are by flruggling closer prest; lexis there with earger flame grows bold, Nor can the nymph his wanton fingers hold; e wife, Alexis; what, fo near the road! Hark, a coach rolls, and husbands are abroad! Such were our pleasures in the days of yore, When am'rous Charles Britannia's sceptre bore: The nightly scene of joy the Park was made, and Love in couples peopled every shade. But fince at court the rural taste is lost, What mighty fums have velvet couches cost!

Sometimes the Tuillerie's gawdy walk I love,
There I through crowds of rustling manteaus rove;
I here from fide to fide my eyes I cast,

Well; now you've Paris seen, you'll frankly own
Your boatted London seems a country-town;

" Has Christianity yet reach'd your nation ?

" Are churches built? Are masquerades in fashion?

" Do daily foups your dinners introduce?

" Are music, snuff, and coaches yet in use?" Pardon me, Sir; we know the Paris mode. And gather politeffe from courts abroad. Like you, our courtiers keep a num'rous train To load their coach; and tradefmon dun in vain, Nor has religion left us in the lurch, And, as in France, our vulgar crowd the church: Our ladies too support the masquerade, The fex by nature love th' intriguing trade. Straight the vain fop in ign'rant rapture cries. " Paris the barbarous world will civilize!" Pray, Sir, point out among the passing band The present beauties who the town command.

- " See, yonder dame; ftrict virtue chills her breaft,
- " Mark in her eye demure the prude profest;
- "That frozen bosom native fire must want,
- " Which boafts of conflancy to one gallant!
- "This next the spoils of fifty lovers wears,
- " Rich Dandin's brilliant favours grace her ears? "The necklace Florio's gen'rous flame bestow'd,
- " Clitander's sparkling gems her finger load;
- " But now her charms grow cheap by constant use,
- " She fins for fearfs, clock'd flockings, knots, and & thoes.
- "The next, with fober gait, and ferious leer,
- "Wearies her knees with morn and ev'ning prayer;
- " She fcorns th' ignoble love of feeble pages,
- " But with three abbots in one night engages.
- "This with the cardinal her nights employs,
- "Where holy finews confecrate her joys.

Why have I promis'd things beyond my power!
Five affignations wait me at this hour,
The sprightly Counters first my visit claims,
To-morrow shall indulge inferior dames.

Pardon me, Sir, that thus I take my leave, Gay Florimella slily twitch'd my sleeve."

yer;

Adieu, Monsieur—The Opera hour draws near.
Not see the Opera! all the world is there;
Where on the stage th' embroider'd youth of France
in bright array attract the semale glance:
This languishes, this struts, to show his mein,
And not a gold-clock'd stocking moves unseen.

But hark! the full orchestra strike the strings: The hero struts, and the whole audience sings.

My jarring ear harsh grating murmurs wound,
Hoarse and confus'd, like Babel's mingled sound.
Hard chance had plac'd me near a noisy throat,
That in rough quayers bellow'd ev'ry note.
Pray, Sir, says I, suspend a while your song,
The opera's drown'd; your lungs are wond'rous strong;

wish to hear your Roland's ranting strain,
While he with rooted forests strows the plain.
Sudden he shrugs surprize, and answers quick,
Monsieur apparenment n'aime pas la musique.
Then turning round, he join'd th' ungrateful noise;
And the loud chorus thunder'd with his voice.

O foothe me with fome fost Italian air, Let harmony compose my tortur'd ear! When Anastatia's voice commands the strain, The melting warble thrills through ev'ry vein; Thought stands suspense, and silence pleas'd attends, While in her notes the heav'nly choir descends.

But you'll imagine I'm a Frenchman grown,
Pleas'd and content with nothing but my own,
So strongly with this prejudice posses'd,
He thinks French music and French painting best.
Mention the force of learn'd Corelli's notes,
Some scraping fidler of their ball he quotes;
Talk of the spirit Raphael's pencil gives,
Yet warm with life whose speaking picture lives;
Yes, Sir, says he, in colour and design,
Rigaut and Raphael are extremely fine!

'Tis true his country's love transports his break With warmer zeal, than your old Greeks profes'd. Ulysses lov'd his Ithaca of yore, Yet that fage trav'ler left his native shore; What stronger virtue in the Frenchman shines! He to dear Paris all his life consines. I'm not so fond. There are, I must confess, Things which might make me love my country lefs. I should not think my Britain had such charms, If lost to learning, if enslav'd by arms; France has her Richlieus and her Colberts known, And then, I grant it, France in science shone: We too, I own, without such aids may chance In ignorance and pride to rival France.

But let me not forget Corneille, Racine, Boileau's strong sense, and Moliere's hum'rous scene. Let Cambray's name be sung above the rest,
Whose maxims, Pult'ney, warm thy patriot breast;
In Mentor's precepts Wisdom strong and clear
Dictates sublime, and distant nations hear.
Hear all ye princes, who the world controul,
What cares, what terrors haunt the tyrant's soul;
His constant train are anger, fear, distrust.
To be a King, is to be good and just;
His people he protects, their rights he saves,
And scorns to rule a wretched race of slaves.

Happy, thrice happy shall the monarch reign, Where guardian laws despotic power restrain! There shall the ploughshare break the stubborn land, And bending harvest tire the peasant's hand: There liberty her settled mansion boasts, There commerce plenty brings from foreign coasts. O Britain, guard thy laws, thy rights desend, so shall these blessings to thy sons descend!

You'll think 'tis time fome other theme to chuse,
And not with beaus and sops satigue the Muse:
Should I let Satire loose on English ground,
There sools of various character abound;
But here my verse is to one sace confin'd,
All Frenchmen are of petit maitre kind.

PAUL METHUEN, Efq;

THAT 'tis encouragement makes Science spread, Is rarely practis'd, though 'tis often said; When learning droops and sickens in the land, What patron's found to lend a saving hand? True gen'rous spirits prosp'rous vice detest, And love to cherish virtue when distress'd: But ere our mighty lords this scheme pursue, Our mighty lords must think and act like you.

Why must we climb the Alpine mountains sides. To find the seat where Harmony resides?
Why touch we not so soft the silver lute,
The cheerful hautboy, and the mellow flute?
'Tis not th' Italian clime improves the sound,
But there the patrons of her sons are sound.

Why flourish'd verse in great Augustus' reign? He and Mecænas lov'd the Muse's strain. But now that wight in poverty must mourn Who was (O cruel stars!) a poet born. Yet there are ways for authors to be great; Write rane'rous libels to reform the state:

Or if you chuse more sure and ready ways,
Spatter a minister with sulsome praise:
Launch out with freedom, flatter him enough;
Fear not, all men are dedication-proof.
Be bolder yet, you must go farther still,
Dip deep in gall thy mercenary quill.
He who his pen in party quarrels draws,
Lists an hir'd bravo to support the cause;
He must indulge his patron's hate and spleen,
And stab the same of those he ne'er hath seen.
Why then should authors mourn their desp'rate case?
Be brave, do this, and then demand a place.
Why art thou poor? exert the gifts to rise,
And banish tim'rous virtue from thy eyes.

All this feems modern preface, where we're told That wit is prais'd, but hungry lives and cold: Against th' ungrateful age these authors roar, And fancy learning starves, because they're poor. Yet why should learning hope success at court? Why should our patriots virtue's cause support? Why to true merit should they have regard? They know that virtue is its own reward. Yet let not me of grievances complain, Who (though the meanest of the Muse's train) Can boast subscriptions to my humble lays, And mingle profit with my little praise.

Ask Painting, why she loves Hesperian air?
Go view, she cries, my glorious labours there;
There in rich palaces I reign in state,
And on the temples losty domes create.
The nobles view my works with knowing eyes:
They love the science, and the painter prize.
Vol. II.

Why didft thou, Kent, forego thy native land, To emulate in Picture Raphael's hand? Think'st thou for this to raise thy name at home ! Go back, adorn the palaces of Rome; There on the walls let thy just labours shine, And Raphael live again in thy defign. Yet stay a while; call all thy genius forth, For Burlington unbyafs'd knows thy worth; His judgment in thy master-strokes can trace Titian's ftrong fire and Guido's fofter grace: But, oh consider, ere thy works appear, Canst thou unhurt the tongue of envy hear? Censure will blame, her breath was ever spent To blaft the laurels of the Eminent. While Burlington's proportion'd columns rife, Does not he stand the gaze of envious eyes? Doors, windows, are condemn'd by passing fools, Who know not that they damn Palladio's rules. If Chandois with a lib'ral hand bestow, Censure imputes it all to pomp and show: When, if the motive right were understood, His daily pleasure is in doing good.

Dennis had never kindled into rage.
'Tis the fublime that hurts the Critic's eafe;
Write nonfense, and he reads and sleeps in peace.
Were Prior, Congreve, Swift and Pope unknown,
Poor slander-selling Curl would be undone.
He who would free from malice pass his days,
Must live obscure, and never merit praise.
But let this tale to valiant virtue tell
The daily perils of deserving well,

HENRIETTA,

DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH

E XCUSE me, Madam, if amidst your tears
A Muse intrudes, a Muse who feels your cares.
Numbers, like music, can ev'n grief controul,
And lull to peace the tumults of the soul.

If partners in our woes the mind relieve, Confider for your loss ten thousand grieve. Th' affliction burthens not your heart alone; When Marlbro' dy'd, a nation gave a groan.

Could I recite the dang'rous toils he chose, To bless his country with a fix'd repose, Could I recount the labours he o'ercame To raise his country to the pitch of same, His councils, sieges, his victorious sights, To save his country's laws and native rights, No sather (ev'ry gen'rous heart must own) Has stronger sondness to his darling shown.

Britannia's fighs a double loss deplore, Her father and her hero is no more.

H,

53

Does Britain only pay her debt of tears?
Yes. Holland fighs, and for her freedom fears.
When Gallia's monarch pour'd his wasteful bands,
Like a wide deluge, o'er her level lands,
She saw her frontier tow'rs in ruin ly,
Ev'n Liberty had prun'd her wings to fly;
Then Martbro' came, deseated Gallia sled,
And shatter'd Belgia rais'd her languid head,
In him secure, as in her strongest mound
That keeps the raging sea within its bound.

O Germany, remember Hockstet's plain,
Where prostrate Gallia bled at ev'ry vein!
Think on the rescue of th' Imperial throne,
Then think on Marlbro's death without a groan!

Apollo kindly whispers me: " Be wife,

4 How to his glory shall thy numbers rise?

"The force of verse another theme might raise,

"But here the merit must transcend the prase.

"Hast thou, presumptuous Bard, that godlike slame"
Which with the sun shall last, and Maribro's fame?

"Then fing the man. But who can boast this fire?"
"Refign the task, and filently admire."

Yet, shall he not in worthy lays be read?

Raise Homer, call up Virgil from the dead.

But he requires not the strong glare of verse,

Let punctual history his deeds rehearse,

u 3

Let truth in native purity appear, You'll find Achilles and Aneas there,

Is this the comfort which the Muse bestows?

I but indulge and aggravate your woes.

A prudent friend, who seeks to give rehes,
Ne'er touches on the spring that mov'd the gries.

Is it not barb'rous to the sighing maid
To mention broken vows and nymphs betray'd?
Would you the ruin'd merchant's soul appease,
With talk of sands, and rocks, and stormy seas?

Ev'n while I strive on Massbro's same to rise,
Leall up forrow in a Daughter's eyes.

Think on the laurels that his temples shade,
Laurels that (spite of time) shall never fade;
Immortal Honour has enroll'd his name,
Detraction's dumb, and Envy put to shame;
Say, who can foar beyond his eagle slight?
Has he not reach'd to glory's utmost height?
What could he more, had Heaven prolong'd his date?

All human power is limited by fate.

Forbear. 'Tis cruel further to commend;'
I wake your forrow, and again offend.
Yet fure your goodness must forgive a crime,
Which will be spread through ev'ry age and clime;
Though in your life ten thousand summers roll,
And though you compass earth from pole to pole,
Where-e'er men talk of war and martial same,
They'll mention Marlborough's and Cafar's name.

But vain are all the counsels of the Muse,
A soul, like yours, cou'd not a tear resuse:
Could you your birth and filial love forego,
still sighs must rise and gen'rous forrow flow;
For when from earth such matchless worth removes.

A great mind fuffers. Virtue, virtue loves.

An Answer to the Sompner's Prologueof Chaucer.

In imitation of Chaucer's ftyle.

THE Sompner leudly hath his prologue told,
And faine on the freers his tale japing and bold:
How that in hell they fearchen near and wide,
And nae one freer in all thilke place espyde,
But lo! the devil turn'd his erse about,
And twenty thousand freers went in and out.
By which in Jeosfrys rhyming it appears,
The devil's belly is the hive of freers.

Now listneth lordings! forthwith ye shall hear,
What happened at a house in Lancashire.
A misere that had londs and tenement,
Who raketh from his villaines taxes and rent,
Owned a house which emptye long y-stood,
Full deeply sited in a derkning wood,
Murmring a shallow brook runneth along,
Mong the round stones it maken doleful song.

come at the land and private there.

Now there spreaden a rumour that everich night. The rooms inhaunted been by many a sprite; The miller avoucheth, and all there about, That they full oft' hearen the hellish rout;

Some saine they hear the jingling of chains, And some hath yheard the psautries straines, At midnight some the headless horse imeet, And some espien a corse in a white sheet, And oother things, saye, elsin and else, And shapes that sear createn to it selse.

Now it so hapt, there was not ferre away, Of gray freers a fair and rich abbaye, Where liven a freer yeleped Pere Thomas, Who daren alone in derke through church-yerds pass.

This freer would lye in thilke house all night, In hope he might espyen a dreadful sprite. He taketh candle, beades, and hely watere, And legends eke of saintes, and books of prayere. He entereth the room, and looketh round about, And haspen the door to haspen the goblin out. The candle hath he put close by the bed, And in low tone his ave marye said. With water now besprinkled hath the floore, And maken cross on key-hole of the doore. Ne was there not a mouse-hole in thilke place, But he y-crossed hath by God his grace: He crossed hath this, and eke he crossed that, With benedicite, and God knows what.

Now he goeth to bed and lieth adown,
When the clock had just stricken the twelfth soun.
Bethinketh him now what the cause had ibeen,
Why many sprites by mortals have been seen.
Hem remembreth how Dan Plutarch hath y-sed.
That Czsar's sprite came to Brute his bed;

Of chains that frighten erst Artemidore,
The tales of Pline, Valere, and many more.
Hem thinketh that some murdere here been done,
And he mought see some bloodye ghost anone,
Or that some orphlines writings here be stor'd,
Or pot of gold laine deep beneath a board:
Or thinketh hem, if he might see no sprite,
The abbaye mought buy this house cheap outright.

As hem thus thinketh, anone affeep he lies, Up starten Sathanas with saucer eyes. He turned the freer upon his face downright, Displaying his nether checks full broad and white. Then quoth Dan Sathanas as he thwacked him fore, Thou didst forget to guard thy postern-door. There is an hole which hath not crossed been: Farewel, from whence I came, I creepen in.

Now plain it is ytellen in my verse, If devils in hell bear freers in their erse, On earth the devil in freers doth y-dwell; Were there no freers, the devil mought keep in hell.

WORK FOR A COOPER

A TALE.

A MAN may lead a happy life, Without that needful thing a wife: This long have lufty abbots known, Who ne'er knew spouses—of their own.

What, though your house be clean and neat, With couches, chairs, and beds compleat; Though you each day invite a friend, Though he should ev'ry dish commend, On Bagfhot-heath your mutton fed, Your fowls at Brentford born and bred; Though purest wine your cellars boast, Wine worthy of the fairest toast: Yet there are other things requir'd: Ring, and let's fee the maid you hir'd-Bless me! those hands might hold a broom, Twirl round a mop, and wash a room; A batchelor his maid should keep, Not for that servile use to sweep; Let ber his humour understand. And turn to ev'ry thing her hand. Get you a lass that's young and tight, Whose arms are, like her apron, white; What though her shift be seldom seen? Let that, though coarse, be always clean;

She might each morn your tea attend,
And on your wrist you russe mend;
Then if you break a roguish jest,
Or squeeze her hand, or pat her breast,
She cries, Oh dear Sir, don't be naught!
And blushes speak her last night's fault.
To you her houshold cares conside,
Let your keys gingle at her side;
A footman's blunders teaze and fret ye,
Ev'n while you chide you smile on Betty.
Discharge him then, if he's too spruce,
For Betty's for his master's use.

Will you your am'rous fancy baulk,
For fear fome prudish neighbour talk?
But you'll object, that you're afraid
Of the pert freedoms of a maid:
Besides, your wiser heads will fay,
That she who turns her hand this way,
From one vice to another drawn,
Will lodge your silver spoons in pawn.
Has not the homely wrinkled jade
More need to learn the pilf'ring trade?
For love all Betty's wants supplies,
Laces her shoes, her mantua dyes;
All her stuff-suits she slings away,
And wears thread sattin every day.

Who then a dirty drab would hire,
Brown as the hearth of kitchen fire?
When all must own, were Betty put
To the black duties of the slut,
As well she seew'rs or scrubs a floor,
And still is good for something more.

Thus, to avoid the greater vice,

I knew a priest, of confcience nice,

To quell his lust for neighbour's spouse,

Keep fornication in his house.

But you're impatient all this time, Fret at my counsel, curse my rhyme. Be fatisfy'd I'll talk no more, For thus my tale begins Of yore There dwelt at Blois a priest full fair, With rolling eye and crifped hair, His chin bung low, his brow was fleek, Plenty lay balking on his cheek; Whole days at cloyster grates he fat, Ogled, and talk'd of this and that So feelingly; the nuns lamented That double bars were e'er invented. If he the wanton wife confest With downcast eye, and heaving breast; He stroak'd her cheek to still her fear, And talk'd of fins en cavalier. Each time enjoin'd her pennance mild, And fondled on her like his child. At ev'ry jovial goffip's feast Malay words the c Pere Bernard was a welcome gueft; Mirth fuffer'd not the least restraint, He could at will shake off the faint: Nor frown'd he when they freely fpoke, But shook his sides, and took the joke; Nor fail'd he to promote the jest, And shar'd the fins which they confest.

Yet that he might not always roam,

of the local to the ball ode of employed about miss from Cherold Street and an art

Mis maid was in the bloom of beauty,

Well-limb'd for ev'ry focial duty;

He meddled with no houshold cares,

To her confign'd his whole affairs;

She of his study kept the keys,

For he was studious—of his ease:

She had the power of all his locks,

Could rummage ev'ry chest and box;

Her honesty such credit gain'd,

Not ev'n the cellar was restrain'd.

In troth it was a goodly show, Lin'd with full hogsheads all a-row: One veffel, from the rank remov'd. Far dearer than the rest he lov'd. Pour la bonne bouche 'twas fet afide, To all but choicest friends deny'd. He now and then would fend a quart, To warm fome wife's retentive heart, Against confession's fullen hour: Wine has all fecrets in its power. At common feasts it had been waste. Nor was it fit for layman's taste. If monk or friar were his guest, They drank it, for they know the best. Nay, he at length fo fond was grown, He always drank it when-alone.

Who shall recount his civil labours,.
In pious visits to his neighbours?
Whene'er weak husbands went astray,
He guess'd their wives were in the way;
Twas then his charity was shown,
He chose to see them when alone.

Now was he bent on cuckoldom:

He knew friend Dennis was from home;

His wife (a poor neglected beauty,

Defrauded of a hufband's duty)

Had often told him at confession,

How hard she struggled 'gainst transgression.

He now resolves, in heat of blood,

To try how sirm her virtue stood.

He knew what wine (to love best aid)

Has oft made bold the shame-fac'd maid,

Taught her to romp, and take more freedoms,

Than nymphs train'd up at Smith's or Needham's.

A mighty bottle ftrait he chose, Such as might give two friars their dofe : Nannette he call'd: the cellar door She straight unlocks, descends before ; 110 110 11 He follow'd close. But when he spies His fav'rite cask; with lifted eyes And lifted hands aloud he cries, Heigh day! my darling wine aftoop! It must, alas! have sprung a hoop; That there's a leak is past all doubt, (Reply'd the maid)-I'll find it out. She fets the candle down in hafte, Tucks her white apron round her waift, The hogshead's mouldy side ascends, She straddles wide, and downward bends; So low she stoops to feek the flaw, Her coats rose up, her master faw-I fee-he cries-(then claspt her fast) The leak through which my wine has past. Althorace of medical code and I

Then all in haste the maid descended, And in a trice the leak was mended. He found in Nannette all he wanted, So Dennis' brows remain'd unplanted.

Where Arden's forest spreads its limits wide, Whose branching paths the doubtful road divide, A trav'ller took his folitary way; When low beneath the hills was funk the day. And now the fkies with gath'ring darkness lour, The branches rustle with the threaten'd shower; With fudden blafts the forest murmurs loud. Indented lightnings cleave the fable cloud, Thunder on thunder breaks, the tempest roars, And heav'n discharges all its watry stores. The wand'ring traveller shelter seeks in vain, And shrinks and shivers with the beating rain: On his steed's neck the flacken'd bridle lay, Who chose with cautious step th' uncertain way; And now he checks the rein, and halts to hear If any noise foretold a village near. At length from far a stream of light he sees Extend its level ray between the trees; Thither he speeds, and as he nearer came Joyful he knew the lamp's domestic flame That trembled through the window; crofs the way Darts forth the barking cur, and stands at bay.

It was an ancient lonely house, that stood Upon the borders of the spacious wood: Here towers and antique battlements arise, And there in heaps the moulder'd ruin lies; Some Lord this manfion held in days of yore, 'To chace the wolf, and pierce the foaming boar! How chang'd, alas, from what it once had been! 'Tis now degraded to a public inn.

Straight he difmounts, repeats his loud commands;
Swift at the gate the ready landlord stands;
With frequent cringe he bows, and begs excuse,
His house was full, and every bed in use.
What not a garret, and no straw to spare?
Why then the kitchen-fire and elbow-chair
Shall serve for once to nod away the night.
The kitchen ever is the servants right,
Replies the host; there all the sire around,
The Count's tir'd footmen snore upon the ground.

The maid, who listen'd to this whole debate, With pity learn'd the weary stranger's fate. Be brave, she cries, you still may be our guest, Our haunted room was ever held the best; If then your valour can the fright sustain Of rattling curtains and the clinking chain; If your courageous tongue have power to talk, When round your bed the horrid ghost shall walk; If you dare ask it, why it leaves its tomb, I'll see your sheets well air'd, and show the room. Soon as the frighted maid her tale had told, The stranger enter'd, for his heart was bold.

The damfel led him through a spacious hall, Where ivy hung the half-demolish'd wall; She frequent look'd behind, and chang'd her hue, While sancy tipt the candle's slame with blue.

At first he hears the wind with hollow roar Shake the loofe lock, and fwing the creaking door: Nearer and nearer draws the dreadful found Of rattling chains, that dragg'd upon the ground: When lo, the spectre came with horrid stride, Approach'd the bed, and drew the curtains wide! In human form the ghaftful phantom flood, Expos'd his mangled bofom dy'd with blood. Then filent pointing to his wounded breaft, Thrice wav'd his hand. Beneath the frighted guest The bed-cords trembled, and with shudd'ring fear, Sweat chill'd his limbs, high rose his briftled hair; Then mutt'ring hafty pray'rs, he mann'd his heart, And cry'd aloud; Say, whence and who thou art. The stalking ghost with hollow voice replies, Three years are counted, fince with mortal eyes I faw the fun, and vital air respir'd. Like thee benighted, and with travel tir'd, Within these walls I slept. O thirst of gain! See, still the planks the bloody mark retain; Stretch'd on this very bed, from fleep I flart, And fee the steel impending o'er my heart: The barb'rous hostess held the lifted knife. The floor ran purple with my gushing life. My treafure now they feize, the golden spoil They bury deep beneath the grafs-grown foil, VOL. II.

Far in the common field. Be bold, arise,
My steps shall lead thee to the secret prize;
There dig and find; let that thy care reward:
Call loud on Justice, bid her not retard
To punish murder; lay my ghost at rest,
So shall with peace secure thy nights be blest;
And when beneath these boards my bones are sound,
Decent inter them in some sacred ground.

Here ceas'd the ghost. The stranger springs from bed,

And boldly follows where the phantom led;
The half-worn stony stairs they now descend,
Where passages obscure their arches bend.
Silent they walk; and now through groves they pass,
Now through wet meads their steps imprint the grass;
At length amidst a spacious field they came:
There stops the spectre, and ascends in slame.
Amaz'd he stood; no bush, or briar, was found,
To teach his morning search to find the ground;
What could he do? the night was hideous dark,
Fear shook his joints, and nature dropt the mark:
With that he starting wak'd, and rais'd his head,
But sound the golden mark was lest in bed.

What is the statesman's vast ambitious scheme, But a short vision, and a golden dream?

Power, wealth, and title elevate his hope;

He wakes. But for a garter finds a rope.

PRUDE, at morn and evining pray'r, Had worn her velvet cushion bare; Upward she taught her eyes to roll, As if the watch'd her foaring foul; And when devotion warm'd the crowd, None fung, or fmote their breast fo loud: Pale Penitence had mark'd her face With all the meagre figns of grace. Her mass-book was compleatly lin'd With painted faints of various kind: But when in ev'ry page she view'd Fine ladies who the flesh subdu'd; As quick her beads she counted o'er, She cry'd-fuch wonders are no more! She chose not to delay confession, To bear at once a year's transgression, But ev'ry week fet all things ev'n, And balanc'd her accounts with Heav'n.

Behold her now in humble guise, Upon her knees with downcast eyes Before the priest: She thus begins, And sobbing, blubbers forth her fins:

Who could that tempting man refift? My virtue languish'd, as he kis'd; 1 strove—'till I could strive no longer; How can the weak subdue the stronger?

The Father ask'd her where and when? How many? and what fort of men? By what degrees her blood was heated? How oft' the frailty was repeated? Thus have I seen a pregnant wench All slush'd with guilt before the bench, The judges (wak'd by wanton thought) Dive to the bottom of her fault, They leer, they simper at her shame, And make her call all things by name.

And now to fentence he proceeds,
Prescribes how oft' to tell her beads;
Shows her what saints could do her good,
Doubles her fasts to cool her blood.
Eas'd of her sins, and light as air,
Away she trips perhaps to prayer.
'Twas no such thing. Why then this haste?'
The clock has struck, the hour is past,
And on the spur of inclination,
She scorn'd to bilk her assignation.

Whate'er she did, next week she came, And piously confess'd the same; The Priest, who semale frailties pity'd, First chid her, then her sus remitted. But did she now her crime bemoan In penitential sheets alone? And was no bold, no beastly fellow The nightly partner of her pillow? No, none: for next time in the grove A bank was conscious of her love.

Confession-day was come about,
And now again it all must out.
She seems to wipe her twinkling eyes.
What now,my child? the Father cries.
Again, says she—with threatning looks,
He thus the prostrate dame rebukes.

Madam, I grant there's fomething in it, That virtue has th' unguarded minute; But pray now tell me what are whores, But women of unguarded hours?" Then you must fure have lost all shame. What, ev'ry day, and still the same, And no fault else! 'tis strange to find A woman to one fin confin'd! Pride is this day her darling passion, The next day slander is in fashion; Gaming succeeds; if fortune crosses, Then Virtue's mortgag'd for her loffes; By usc her fav'rite vice she loaths, And loves new follies like new cloaths: But you, beyond all thought unchaste, Have all fin center'd near your waist! Whence is this appetite fo strong? Say, Madam, did your mother long? Or is it luxury and high diet That won't let virtue fleep in quiet?

She tells him now with meekest voice, That she had never err'd by choice, Nor was there known a virgin chaster, Till ruin'd by a sad disaster.

That she a fav'rite lap-dog had, Which (as she stroak'd and kis'd) grew mad; And on her lip a wound indenting, First set her youthful blood fermenting.

The Priest reply'd, with zealous fury, You should have fought the means to cure ye. Doctors by various ways, we find, Treat these distempers of the mind.

Let gaudy ribbands be deny'd,
To her, who raves with fcornful pride;
And if religion crack her notions,
Lock up her volumes of devotions;
But if for man her rage prevail,
Barr her the fight of creatures male.
Or elfe, to cure fuch venom'd bites,
And fet the shatter'd thoughts arights,
They send you to the ocean's shore,
And plunge the patient o'er and o'er.

The dame reply'd, Alas! in vain.
My kindred forc'd me to the main;
Naked, and in the face of day;
Look not, ye fishermen, this way!
What virgin had not done as I did?
My modest hand, by nature guided,
Debarr'd at once from human eyes.

And though thrice dipt from top to toe, I still secur'd the post below, And guarded it with grasp so fast Not one drop through my singers past; Thus owe I to my bashful care, That all the rage is settled there.

Weigh well the projects of mankind; Then tell me, Reader, canst thou find The man from madness wholly free? They all are mad—fave you and me. Do not the statesman, sop and wit, By daily sollies prove they're bit? And when the bring cure they try'd, some part still kept above the tide?

Some men (when drench'd beneath the wave). High o'er their heads their fingers fave:
Those hands by mean extortion thrive,
Or in the pocket lightly dive:
Or more expert in pilf'ring vice,
They burn and itch to cog the dice.

Plunge in a courtier; strait his sears.

Direct, his hands to stop his ears.

And now truth seems a grating noise,
He loves the sland'rer's whisp'ring voice;
He hangs on flatt'ry with delight,
And thinks all sulsome praise is right.

All women dread a wat'ry death:
They shut their lips to hold their breath,
And though you duck them ne'er so long,
Not one salt drop e'er wets their tongue;
"Tis hence they scandal have at will,
And that this member ne'er lyes still.

BIRTH OF THE SQUIRE.

ANECLOGUE

In imitation of the Pollio of VIRGIL.

VE fylvan Muses, lostier strains recite, Not all in shades, and humble cotts delight. Hark! the bells ring; along the distant grounds The driving gales convey the fwelling founds; Th'attentive fwain, forgetful of his work, With gaping wonder, leans upon his fork. What fudden news alarms the waking morn? To the glad Squire a hopeful heir is born. Mourn, mourn, ye stags; and all ye beasts of chase, This hour destruction brings on all your race: See the pleas'd tenants duteous off'rings bear, Turkeys and geefe and grocer's fweetest ware; With the new health the pond'rous tankard flows, And old October reddens ev'ry nofe. Beagles and spaniels round his cradle stand, Kifs his moift lip and gently lick his hand; He joys to hear the shrill horns echoing founds, And learns to life the names of all the hounds. With frothy ale to make his cup o'erflow, Barley shall in paternal acres grow;

The bee shall sip the fragrant dew from flow'rs, To give metheglin for his morning hours; For him the clust'ring hop shall climb the poles, And his own orchard sparkle in his bowls.

His fire's exploits he now with wonder hears, The monstrous tales indulge his greedy ears; How when youth strung his nerves, and warm'd his veins,

He rode the mighty Nimrod of the plains:
He leads the staring infant through the hall,
Points out the horny spoils that grace the wall;
Tells, how this stag thro' three whole counties sted,
What rivers swam, where bay'd, and where he bled.
Now he the wonders of the fox repeats,
Describes the desp'rate chase, and all his cheats;
How in one day beneath his surious speed,
He tir'd seven coursers of the sleetest breed;
How high the pale he leapt, how wide the ditch,
When the hound tore the haunches of the * witch!
These stories which descend from son to son,
The forward boy shall one day make his own.

Ah, too fond mother, think the time draws nigh,
That calls the darling from thy tender eye;
How thall his spirit brook the rigid rules,
And the long tyranny of grammar schools?
Let younger brothers o'er dull authors plod,
Lash'd into Latin by the tingling rod;
No, let him never feel that smart disgrace:
Why should he wifer prove than all his race?

^{*} The most common accident to sportsinen, to hunt a witch in the shape of a hare,

When rip'ning youth with down o'ershades his chin,

And cv'ry female eye incites to fin;
The milk-maid (thoughtless of her future shame)
With smacking lip shall raise his guilty slame;
The dairy, barn, the hay-lost and the grove
Shall oft' be conscious of their stolen love.
But think, Priscilla, on that dreadful time,
When pangs and watry qualms shall own thy crime;
How wilt thou tremble when thy nipple's press'd,
To see the white drops bathe thy swelling breast!
Nine Moons shall publicly divulge thy shame,
And the young Squire forestall a father's name.

When twice twelve times the reaper's fweeping hand

With levell'd harvests has bestrown the land,
On fam'd St Hubert's feast, his winding horn
Shall cheer the joyful hound and wake the morn:
This memorable day his eager speed
Shall urge with bloody heel the rising steed.
O check the foamy bit, nor tempt thy fate,
Think on the murders of a five-bar gate!
Yet prodigal of life, the leap he tries,
Low in the dust his groveling honour lyes,
Headlong he falls, and on the rugged stone
Distorts his neck, and cracks the collar bone;
O vent'rous youth, thy thirst of game allay,
May'st thou survive the perils of this day!
He shall survive; and in late years be sent
To snore away debates in Parliament.

The time shall come, when his more solid sense With nod important shall the laws dispense; Vol. II.

A justice with grave justices shall sit,
He praise their wisdom, they admire his wit.
No greyhound shall attend the tenant's pace,
No rusty gun the farmer's chimney grace;
Salmons shall leave their covers void of fear,
Nor dread the thievesh net or triple spear;
Poachers shall tremble at his awful name,
Whom vengeance now o'ertakes for murder'd game.

Assist me, Bacchus, and ye drunken pow'rs, To fing his friendships and his midnight hours!

Why dost thou glory in thy strength of beer, Firm-cork'd, and mellow'd till the twentieth year; Brew'd or when Phœbus warms the sleecy sign, Or when his languid rays in Scorpio shine. Think on the mischiefs which from hence have sprung! It arms with curses dire the wrathful tongue; Foul scandal to the lying lip affords, And prompts the mem'ry with injurious words. O where is wisdom, when by this o'erpower'd? The state is censur'd, and the maid deflower'd! And wilt thou still, O Squire, brew ale so strongs? Hear then the dictates of prophetic song.

Methinks I fee him in his hall appear,
Where the long table floats in clammy beer,
'Midst mugs and glasses shatter'd o'er the floor,
Dead-drunk his servile crew supinely snore;
Triumphant, o'er the prostrate brutes he slands,
The mighty bumper trembles in his hands;
Boldly he drinks, and like his glorious sires,
In copious gulps of potent ale expires.

LYDIA.

Now twenty fprings had cloth'd the park with green,
Since Lydia knew the bloffom of fifteen:
No lovers now her morning hours moleft,

g

And catch her at her toilette half undrest;
The thund'ring knocker wakes the street no more,
No chairs, no coaches croud her silent door;
Her midnights once at cards and Hazard sled,
Which now, alas! she dreams away in bed.
Around her wait shocks, monkeys and mockaws,
To sill the place of sops, and perjur'd beaus;
In these she views the mimicry of man,
And smiles when grinning Pug gallants her fan;
When Poll repeats, the sounds deceive her ear,
For sounds, like his, once told her Damon's care.
With these alone her tedious mornings pass;
Or at the dumb devotion of her glass,
She smooths her brow, and frizles forth her hairs,
And fancies youthful dress gives youthful airs;

With crimson wool she fixes ev'ry grace, That not a blush can discompose her face. Reclin'd upon her arm she pensive fate, And curs'd th' inconstancy of youth too late.

O Youth! O spring of life! for ever lost!

No more my name shall reign the fav'rite toast,
On glass no more the di'mond grave my name,
And rhymes mispell'd record a lover's stame:
Nor shall side-boxes watch my restless eyes,
And as they catch the glance in rows arise
With humble bows; nor white-glov'd beaus encroach
In crouds behind, to guard me to my coach.
Ah! hapless nymph! such conquests are no more,
For Chloe's now what Lydia was before!

'Tis true, this Chloe boasts the peach's bloom. But does her nearer whisper breathe persume? I own her taper shape is form'd to please. Yet if you saw her unconfin'd by stays! She doubly to sisteen may make pretence; Alike we read it in her sace and sense. Her reputation! but that never yet Could check the freedoms of a young coquet. Why will ye then, vain sops, her eyes believe? Her eyes can, like your perjur'd tongues, deceive.

What shall I do? how spend the hateful day? At chapel shall I wear the morn away?
Who there frequents at these unmodish hours, But ancient matrons with their frizled tow'rs, And gray religious maids? my presence there Amid that sober train would own despair:
Nor am I yet so old; nor is my glance
As yet sixt wholly to devotion's trance.

Straight then I'll dress, and take my wonted range Through ev'ry Indian shop, through all the Change; Where the tall jar erects his costly pride, With antic shapes in China's azure dy'd: There careless lyes the rich brocade unroll'd. Here shines a cabinet with burnish'd gold; But then remembrance will my grief renew, Twas there the raffling dice false Damon threw : The raffling dice to him decide the prize. "Twas there he first convers'd with Chloe's eves: Hence fprung th' ill-fated cause of all my smart; To me the toy he gave, to her his heart. But foon thy peri'ry in the gift was found, The shiver'd China dropt upon the ground; Sure omen that thy vows would faithless prove; Frail was thy prefent, frailer is thy love.

O happy Poll! in weary prison pent;
Thou ne'er hast known what love or rivals meant;
And Pug with pleasure can his features bear,
Who ne'er believ'd the vows that lovers swear!
How am I curst! (unhappy and forlorn)
With perjury, with love, and rival's scorn!
False are the loose coquet's inveigling airs,
False is the pompous grief of youthful heirs;
False is the cringing courtier's plighted word,
False are the dice when gamesters stamp the board:
False is the sprightly widow's public tear;
Yet these to Damon's oaths are all sincere.

Fly from perfidious man, the fex disdain; Let servile Chloe wear the nuptial chain. Damon is practis'd in the modish life, Can hate, and yet be civil to a wife. He games; he swears; he drinks; he sights; he roves; Yet Chloe can believe he fondly loves.

Mistress and wise can well supply his need,.

A miss for pleasure, and a wise for breed.

But Chloe's air is unconfin'd and gay,

And can perhaps an injur'd bed repay;

Perhaps her patient temper can behold.

The rival of her love adorn'd with gold.

Powder'd with di'monds; free from thought and care,

A husband's sullen humours she can bear.

Why are these sobs? and why these streaming eyes? Is love the cause? no, I the sex despise; I hate, I loath his base persidious name. Yet if he should but seign a rival stame? But Chloe boasts and triumphs in my pains, To her he's faithful, 'tis to me he seigns.

Thus love-fiek Lydia rav'd. Her maid appears;
A band-box in her steady hand she bears.
How well this ribband's gloss becomes your face!
She cries, in raptures; then, so sweet a lace!
How charmingly you look! so bright! so fair!
'Tis to your eyes the head-dress owes its air.
Straight Lydia smil'd; the comb adjusts her locks,
And at the playhouse Harry keeps her box.

S AINT James's noon-day bell for prayers had toll'd,

And coaches to the patron's levée roll'd,
When Doris rose. And now through all the room
From flow'ry tea exhales a fragrant sume.
Cup after cup they sipt, and talk'd by sits,
For Doris here, and there Melanthe sits.
Doris was young, a laughter-loving dame,
Nice of her own alike and others same;
Melanthe's tongue could well a tale advance,
And sooner gave than sunk a circumstance:
Lock'd in her mem'ry secrets never dy'd;
Doris begun, Melanthe thus reply'd.

Laura rails on at men, the fex reviles, Their vice condemns, or at their folly fmiles. Why thould her tongue in just refentment fail, Since men at her with equal freedom rail?

DORIS.

Last Masquerade was Sylvia nymphlike seen, Her hand a crook sustain'd, her dress was green; An am'rous skepherd led her through the croud, The nymph was innocent, the shepherd vow'd; But nymphs their innocence with shepherds trust; So both withdrew, as nymph and shepherd must.

MELANTHE.

Name but the licence of the modern stage, Laura takes sire, and kindles into rage; The whining tragic love she scarce can bear, But nauseous comedy ne'er shock'd her ear; Yet in the gall'ry mobb'd she sits secure, And laughs at jests that turn the box demure.

DORIS.

Trust not, ye Ladies, to your beauty's pow'r,
For beauty withers like a shrivell'd flow'r;
Yet those fair flow'rs that Sylvia's temples bind,
Fade not with sudden blights or winter's wind;
Like those her face desies the rolling years,
For art her roses and her charms repairs.

MELANTHE.

Laura despises ev'ry outward grace,.
The wanton sparkling eye, the blooming face;

The beauties of the foul are all her pride, For other beauties nature has deny'd; If affectation show a beauteous mind, Lives there a man to Laura's merits blind?

DORIS.

Sylvia be fure defies the town's reproach,
Whose Deshabille is foil'd in hackney coach;
What though the fash was clos'd, must we conclude,
That she was yielding, when her sop was rude?

MELANTHE.

Laura learnt caution at too dear a cost.

What Fair could e'er retrieve her honour lost?

Secret she loves; and who the nymph can blame,
Who durst not own a footman's vulgar slame?

DORIS.

Though Laura's homely taste descends so low; Her footman well may vie with Sylvia's beau.

MELANTHE.

Yet why should Laura think it a disgrace, When proud Miranda's groom wears Flanders lace?

DORIS.

What, though for music Cynthio boasts an ear?
Robin perhaps can hum an opera air.
Cynthio can bow, takes snuff, and dances well,
Robin talks common sense, can write and spell:
Sylvia's vain fancy dress and show admires,
But 'tis the man alone whom Laura fires.

Plato's wise morals Laura's soul improve:
And this no doubt must be Platonic love!
Her soul to gen'rous acts was still inclin'd;
What shows more virtue than an humble mind?

DORIS.

What though young Sylvia love the Park's coof shade,

And wander in the dusk the secret glade?

Masqu'd and alone (by chance) she met her spark,.

That innocence is weak which shuns the dark.

MELANTHE.

But Laura for her flame has no pretence; Her footman is a footman too in fense. All prudes I hate, and those are rightly curst. With scandal's double load, who censure first.

DORIS.

And what if Cynthio Sylv'a's garter ty'd!
Who such a foot and such a leg would hide;
When crook-knee'd Phillis can expose to view
Her gold-clock'd stocking, and her tawdry shoe?

MELANTHE.

If pure devotion center in the face, If cens'ring others thew intrinsic grace, If guilt to public freedoms be confin'd, Prudes (all must own) are of the holy kind!

DORIS.

Sylvia disdains reserve, and slies constraint:
She neither is, nor would be thought a faint.

MELANTHE.

Love is a trivial passion, Laura cries, May I be bles'd with Friendship's stricter ties; To such a breast all secrets we commend; Sure the whole drawing room is Laura's friend.

DORIS.

r

At marriage Sylvia rails; who men would trust? Yet husbands jealousies are sometimes just. Her favours Sylvia shares among mankind, Such gen'rous love should never be confin'd.

As thus alternate that employ'd their tongue, With thund'ring raps the brazen knocker rung. Laura and Sylvia came; the nymphs arise: This unexpected visit, Doris cries, Is doubly kind! Melanthe Laura led, Since I was last so blest, my dear, she faid, Sure 'tis an age! they sate; the hour was set; And all again that night at ombre-met.

SABINA. LUCY.

WICE had the moon perform'd her monthly race. Since first the veil o'ercast Sabina's face. Then dy'd the tender partner of her bed. And lives Sabina when Fidelio's dead? Fidelio's dead, and yet Sabina lives. But fee the tribute of her tears fhe gives; Their absent lord her rooms in fable mourn, And all the day the glimmering tapers burn; Stretch'd on the couch of state she pensive lyes, While oft the snowy cambric wipes her eyes. Now enter'd Lucy; trufty Lucy knew To roll a sleeve, or bear a billet-doux: Her ready tongue, in secret service try'd, With equal fluency spoke truth or ly'd; She well could flush or humble a gallant, And ferve at once as maid and confidant! A letter from her faithful stays she took: Sabina fnatch'd it with an angry look,

And thus in hasty words her grief confest, While Lucy strove to sooth her troubled breast.

SABINA.

What, still Myrtillo's hand! his flame I fcorp, Give back his passion with the seal untorn. To break our foft repose has man a right, And are we doom'd to read whate'er they write? Not all the fex my firm refolves shall move; My life's a life of forrow not of love. May Lydia's wrinkles all my forehead trace, And Celia's paleness sicken o'er my face. May fops of mine, as Flavia's favours, boaft, And coquets triumph in my honour loft; May cards employ my nights, and never more May these cur st eyes behold a matadore! Break china, perish Shock, die Paroquet! When I Fidelio's dearer love forget. Fidelio's judgment fcorn'd the foppish train. His air was easy, and his dress was plain, His words fincere, refpect his presence drew, And on his lips fweet conversation grew. Where's wit, where's beauty, where is virtue fled ? Alas! they're now no more; Fidelio's dead!

LUCY.

Yet when he liv'd, he wanted ev'ry grace;
That eafy air was then an awkward pace:
Have not your fighs in whifpers often faid,
His drefs was flovenly, his fpeech ill-bred?
Have not I heard you with a fecret tear,
Call that fweet converse fullen and severe?
Think not I come to take Myrtillo's part;

Let Chloe's love in every ear express

All well may judge what shaft has Daphne hit,

But Cloe, Daphne, Doris sondly love.
Sooner shall cits in fashions guide the court,
And beaus upon the busy 'Change resort;
Sooner the nation shall from snuff be freed,

Sooner I'd wish and sigh through nunn'ry grates,

SABINA.

Because some widows are in haste subdu'd; 'Shall every sop upon our tears intrude?' Can I forget my lov'd Fidelio's tongue, Soft as the warbling of Italian song? Did not his rosy lips breathe forth persume, Fragrant as steams from tea's imperial bloom?

LUCY.

Yet once you thought that tongue a greater curse. Than squalls of children for an absent nurse. Have you not fancy'd in his frequent kiss. Th' ungrateful leavings of a filthy Miss?

SABINA.

Love, I thy pow'er defy; no second stame Shall ever raze my dear Fidelio's name. Fannia without a tear might lose her lord, Who ne'er enjoy'd his presence but at board. And why should forrow sit on Lesbia's face? Are there such comforts in a fot's embrace?

No friend, no lover is to Lesbia dead, For Lesbia long had known a sep'rate bed. Gush forth, ye tears; waste, waste, ye sighs, my breast;

My days, my nights, were by Fidelio bleft!

LUCY.

You cannot fure forget how oft you faid
His teazing fondness jealousy betray'd!
When at the play the neighb'ring box he took,
You thought you read suspicion in his look!
When cards and counters slew around the board,
Have you not wish'd the absence of your Lord!
His company was then a poor pretence,

SABINA.

But why fhould I Myrtillo's paffion blame, Since love's a fierce involuntary flame?

íe

LUCY.

Could he the fallies of his heart withstand, Why should he not to Chloe give his hand? For Chloe's handsome, yet he slights her slame; Last night she fainted at Sabina's name. Why, Daphne, dost thou blame Sabina's charms? Sabina keeps no lover from thy arms. At crimp Myrtillo play'd, in kind regards Doris dealt love; he only dealt the cards; Doris was touch'd with spleen; her fan he rent, Flew from the table, and to tears gave vent. Why, Doris, dost thou curse Sabina's eyes? To her Myrtillo is a vulgar prize.

SABINA.

Yet fay, I lov'd; how loud would cenfure rail! So foon to quit the duties of the veil! No; fooner plays and op'ras I'd forswear, And change these China jars for Tunbridge ware; Or trust my mother as a consident, Or six a friendship with my maiden aunt! Than till—to-morrow throw my weeds away. Yet let me see him, if he comes to-day!

BENEATH the shadow of a beaver hat,.

Meek Caleb at a filent meeting fat:

His eye-balls oft forgot the holy trance,

While Tabitha demure, return'd the glance.

The meeting ended, Caleb filence broke,

And Tabitha her inward yearnings spoke.

CALEB.

Beloved, see how all things follow love, Lamb fondleth lamb, and dove disports with dove; Yet fondled lambs their innocence secure, And none can call the turtle's bill impure; O fairest of our sisters, let me be The billing dove, and fondling lamb to thee!

Not the mockaws, all deck'd in scarlet pride, Entice their mild and modest hearts aside; But thou, vain man, beguil'd by Popish shows, Doatest on ribbands, slounces, surbelows. If thy sasse heart be fond of tawdry dyes, Go, wed the painted arch in summer skies; Such love will like the rainbow's hue decay, Strong at the first, but passeth soon away.

CALEB.

Name not the frailties of my youthful days,
When vice missed me through the harlot's ways;
When I with wanton look the fex beheld,
And nature with each wanton look rebell'd;
Then parti-colour'd pride my heart might move
With lace; the net to catch unhallowed love.
All such-like love is fading as the flow'r,
Springs in a day, and withereth in an hour;
But now I feel the 'spousal love within,
And 'spousal love no fister holds a fin.

TABITHA.

I know thou longest for the flaunting maid; Thy falsehood own, and say I am betray'd; The tongue of man is blister'd o'er with lies, But truth is ever read in woman's eyes; O that my lip obey'd a tongue like thine! Or that thine eye bewray'd a love like mine!

CALEB.

How bitter are thy words! forbear to teaze; I too might blame—but love delights to please. Why should I tell thee, that when last the fun Painted the downy peach of Newington,

Josiah led thee through the garden's walk,
And mingled melting kisses with his talk?
Ah, Jealousy! turn, turn thine eyes aside,
How can I see that watch adorn thy side?
For verily no gift the sisters take
For lust of gain, but for the giver's sake.

TABITHA.

I own, Josiah gave the golden toy,
Which did the righteous hand of Quare employ;
When Caleb hath assign'd some happy day,
Ilook on this, and chide the hours delay:
And when Josiah would his love pursue,
On this I look, and shun his wanton view.
Man but in vain with trinkets tries to move;
The only present love demands is love.

CALEB.

Ah, Tabitha, to hear these words of thine,
My pulse beats high, as if inflam'd with wine!
When to the brethren first with servent zeal
The spirit mov'd thy yearnings to reveal,
How did I joy thy trembling lip to see
Red as the cherry from the Kentish tree;
When ecstasy had warm'd thy look so meek,
Gardens of roses blushed on thy cheek.
With what sweet transport didst thou roll thine eyes,
How did thy words provoke the brethren's sighs!
Words that with holy sighs might others move;
But, Tabitha, my sighs were sighs of love.

TABITHA.

Does no proud worldly dame divide thy breast?

Then hear me, Caleb, witness what I speak;
This solemn promise death alone can break;
Sooner I would bedeck my brow with lace,
And with immodest saviries shade my face;
Sooner like Babylon's lewd whore be drest
In slaring di'monds and a scarlet vest,
Or make a curt'sy in cathedral pew,
Than prove inconstant, while my Caleb's true.

CALEB.

When I prove false, and Tabitha forfake, Teachers shall dance a jig at country-wake; Brethren unbeaver'd then shall bow their head, And with profane mince-pies our babes be sed,

TABITHA.

If that Josiah were with passion fir'd,
Warm as the zeal of youth when first inspir'd;
In steady love though he might persevere,
Unchanging as the decent garb we wear,
And thou wert fickle as the wind that blows,
Light as the feather on the head of beaus;
Yet I for thee would all thy fex resign:
Sisters, take all the rest—be Caleb mine.

CALEB.

Though I had all that finful love affords,
And all the concubines of all the lords,
Whose coaches creak with whoredom's finful shame,
Whose velver chairs are with adult'ry lame;
Ev'n in the harlot's hall I would not sip
The dew of lewdness from her lying sip;
I'd shun her paths, upon thy mouth to dwell,
More sweet than powder which the merchants sell;

O folace me with kiffes pure like thine!
Enjoy, ye Lords, the wanton concubine.
The Spring now calls us forth; come, fifter, come,
To fee the primrofe and thy daify bloom.
Let ceremony bind the worldly pair,
Sifters efteem the brethrens words fincere.

TABITHA.

Espousals are but forms. O lead me hence, For secret love can never give offence.

Then hand in hand the loving mates withdraw;
True love is nature unrestrained by law.
This tenet all the holy sect allows;
80 Tabitha took earnest of a spouse.

To my ingehious and worthy friend

WILLIAM LOWNDS, Efq.

Author of that celebrated Treatife in Folio, called the Land-tax Bill.

WHEN poets print their works, the scribbling crew

Stick the bard o'er with bays, like Christmas pew:

Can meagre poetry such fame deserve?

Can poetry, that only writes to starve?

And shall no laurel deck that famous head,
In which the senate's annual law is bred?

That hoary head, which greater glory fires,
By nobler ways and means true same acquires.

O had I Virgil's force to sing the man.

Whose learned lines can millions raise per ann.

Great Lownds his praise should swell the trump of fame, And Rapes and Wapentakes refound his name.

If the blind poet gain'd a long renown
By finging ev'ry Grecian chief and town;
Sure Lownds his profe much greater fame requires,
Which fweetly counts five thousand knights and fquires,

Their feats, their cities, parishes and shires.

Thy copious preamble so smoothly runs;
Taxes no more appear like legal duns,
Lords, knights, and squires th' affessor's power obey,
We read with pleasure, though with pain we pay,

Ah why did C——thy works defame!
That author's long harangue betrays his name;
After his speeches can his pen succeed?
Though forc'd to hear, we're not oblig'd to read.

Under what science shall thy works be read? All know thou wert not poet born and bred; Or dost thou boast th' historian's lasting pen, Whose annals are the acts of worthy men? No. Satire is thy talent; and each lash Makes the rich miser tremble o'er his cash; What on the drunkard can be more severe, Than direful taxes on his ale and beer?

Ev'n Button's wits are nought compar'd to thee, Who ne'er were known or prais'd but o'er his tea, While Thou thro' Britain's distant isse shall spread, In ev'ry Hundred and Division read.

Critics in classics oft' interpolate,
But ev'ry word of thine is fix'd as Fate.

Some works come forth at morn, but die at night In blazing fringers round a tallow light;

Some may perhaps to a whole week extend,
Like S—— (when unaffisted by a friend),
But thou shalt live a year in spite of fate:
And where's your author boasts a longer date?

Poets of old had such a wondrous power,
That with their verses they could raise a tower;

But in thy prose a greater force is found;
What poet ever rais'd ten thousand pound?
Cadmus, by sowing dragon's teeth, we read,
Rais'd a vast army from the pois'nous seed.
Thy labours, Lownds, can greater wonders do,
Thou raisest armies, and canst pay them too.
Truce with thy dreaded pen; thy annals cease;
Why need we armies when the land's in peace?
Soldiers are perfect devils in their way;
When once they're rais'd, they're cursed hard to lay.

L ONG had Panthea felt Love's fecret smart,
And hope and fear alternate rul'd her heart;
Consenting glances had her stame confess'd.
(In woman's eyes her very soul's express'd)
Perjur'd Alexis saw the blushing maid,
He saw, he swore, he conquer'd and betray'd,
Another love now calls him from her arms,
His sickle heart another beauty warms;
Those oaths oft' whisper'd in Panthea's ears,
He now again to Galatea swears.
Beneath a beech th' abandon'd virgin laid,
In grateful solitude enjoys the shade;
There with faint voice she breath'd these moving strains,
While sighing Zephyrs shar'd her am'rous pains.

Pale fettled forrow hangs upon my brow,
Dead are my charms; Alexis breaks his vow!
Think, think, dear fhepherd, on the days you knew,
When I was happy, when my fwain was true;
Think how thy looks and tongue are form'd to move,
And think yet more—that all my fault was love.
Ah, could you view me in this wretched flate!
You might not love me, but you could not hate.

Could you behold me in this conscious shade. Where first thy vows, where first my love was paid. Worn out with watching, fullen with despair, And fee each eye fwell with a gushing tear? Could you behold me on this moffy bed, From my pale cheek the lively crimfon fled, Which in my fofter hours you oft have fworn. With rofy beauty far out-blush'd the morn ; Could you untouch'd this wretched object bear. And would not loft Panthea claim a tear? You could not, fure—tears from your eyes would feal. And unawares thy tender foul reveal. Ah, no !- thy foul with cruelty is fraught, No tenderness diffurbs thy favage thought; Sooner shall tygers spare the trembling lambs, And wolves with pity hear their bleeting dams : Sooner shall vultures from their quarry fly, Than false Alexis for Panthea figh. Thy bosom ne'er a tender thought confess'd, Sure stubborn flint has arm'd thy cruel breast ; But hardest flints are worn by frequent rains, And the fost drops diffolve their folid veins: While thy relentless heart more hard appears. And is not foften'd by a flood of tears.

Ah, what is love! Panthea's joys are gone, Ber liberty, her peace, her reason flown!

And when I view me in the wat'ry glass,
I find Panthea now not what she was.

As northern winds the new-blown roses blass,
And on the ground their fading ruins cast;
As sudden blights corrupt the ripen'd grain,
And of its verdure spoil the mournful plain;

So hapless love on blooming features preys,
So hapless love destroys our peaceful days.

Come, gentle Sleep, relieve these weary'd eyes,.
All sorrow in thy soft embraces dies:
There, spite of all thy perjur'd vows, I find.
Faithless Adonis languishingly kind;
Sometimes he leads me by the mazy stream,
And pleasingly deludes me in my dream;
Sometimes he guides me to the secret grove,
Where all our looks, and all our talk is love.
Oh could I thus consume each tedious day,
And in sweet sumbers dream my life away;
But sleep, which now no more relieves these eyes,
To my sad soul the dear deceit denies.

Why does the fun dart forth its chearful rays? Why do the woods refound with warbling lays? Why does the rose her grateful fragrance yield, And yellow cowflips paint the fmiling field? Why do the streams with murm'ring music flow, And why do groves their friendly shade bestow ! Let fable clouds the chearful fun deface; Let mournful filence seize the feather'd race; No more, ye roses, grateful fragrance yield, Droop, droop, ye cowsips, in the blasted field; No more, ye ftreams, with murm'ring mufic flow. And let not groves a friendly shade bestow: With sympathising grief let nature mourn, And never know the youthful fpring's return : And shall I never more Alexis see? Then what is fpring, or grove, or fiream to me?

Why fport the skipping lambs on yonder plain?
Why do the birds their tuneful voices strain?
Why frisk those heifers in the cooling grove?
Their happier life is ignorant of love.

Oh! lead me to fome melancholy cave,
To lull my forrows in a living grave;
From the dark rock where dashing waters fall,
And creeping ivy hangs the craggy wall;
Where I may waste in tears my hours away,
And never know the seasons or the day.
Die, die, Panthea—fly this hateful grove,
For what is life without the swain Llove?

N OW Phæbus rose, and with his early beams Wak'd slumb'ring Delia from her pleasing dreams;

Her wishes by her fancy were supply'd, And in her sleep the nuptial knot was ty'd. With fecret joy she saw the morning ray Chequer the floor, and through the curtains play; The happy morn that shall her blis compleat. And all her rivals envious hopes defeat. In haste she rose, forgetful of her pray'rs. Flew to the glass, and practis'd o'er her airs : Her new-set jewels round her robe are plac'd. Some in a brilliant buckle bind her waift, Some round her neck a circling light difplay. Some in her hair diffuse a trembling ray; The filver knot o'erlooks the Mechlen lace. And adds becoming beauties to her face: Brocaded flow'rs o'er the gay mantua shine, And the rich stays her taper shape confine; Thus all her drefs exerts a graceful pride, And sporting loves surround th' expecting bride. For Daphnis now attends the blushing maid, Before the priest the folemn vows are paid; This day, which ends at once all Delia's caree. Shall swell a thousand eyes with secret tears.

Ceafe, Araminta, 'tis in vain to grieve,
Canst thou from Hymen's bonds the youth retrieve?
Disdain his perj'ries, and no longer mourn:
Recall my love, and find a sure return.

But still the wretched maid no comfort knows,.
And with refentment cherishes her woes;
Alone she pines, and in these mournful strains,
Of Daphnis' vows, and her own fate complains.

Was it for this I sparkled at the play,
And loiter'd in the ring whole hours away?
When if thy chariot in the circle shone,
Our mutual passion by our looks was known:
Through the gay crowd my watchful glances slew,
Where'er I pass thy grateful eyes pursue.

Ah faithless youth! too well you saw my pain; For eyes the language of the soul explain.

Think, Daphnis, think that scarce five days are fled,

Since (O falfe tongue!) those treach'rous things you faid;

How did you praise my shape and graceful air!
And woman thinks all compliments fincere.
Didst thou not then in rapture speak thy slame,
And in soft fighs breathe Araminta's name?
Didst thou not then with oaths thy passion prove,
And with an awful trembling, say,——I love?

Ab faithless youth! too well you saw my pain ... Eer eyes the language of the soul explain.

Unhappy Shock! yet more unhappy fair,

Methinks I fee her frantic with despair,
Her streaming eyes, wrung hands, and slowing hair;
Her Mechlin pinners rent the floor bestrow,

Design'd for the Pastoral Tragedy of DIONE.

HERE was a time (O were those days renew'd!) Ere tyrant laws had woman's will fubdu'd; Then nature rul'd, and love, devoid of art, Spoke the confenting language of the heart. Love uncontroul'd! infipid, poor delight! 'Tis the restraint that whets our appetite. Behold the beafts who range the forests free; Behold the birds who fly from tree to tree; In their amours fee nature's power appear! And do they love? Yes-One month in the year. Were these the pleasures of the golden reign? And did free nature thus instruct the swain? I envy not, ye nymphs, your am'rous bowers: Such harmless swains !- I'm even content with ours. But yet there's fomething in these sylvan scenes That tells our fancy what the lover means; Name but the mosfy bank, and moon-light grove, Is there a heart that does not beat with love?

- To-night we treat you with fuch country fare, Then for your lover's fake our author spare. He draws no Hemskirk boors, or home-bred clowns, But the fost shepherds of Arcadia's downs.

When Paris on the three his judgment pass'd; I hope, you'll own the shepherd show'd his taste: and Jove, all know, was a good judge of beauty, Who made the nymph Calista break her duty; Then was the country nymph no aukward thing, we what strange revolutions time can bring?

NE.

ps,

Yet still methinks our author's fate I dread,
Were it not saser beaten paths to tread
Ostragedy; than o'er wide heaths to stray, and seeking strange adventures lose his way?
So trumpet's clangor makes his heroine start,
and tears the soldier from her bleeding heart;
the foolish bard! nor pomp nor show regards.
Without the witness of a hundred gnards,
this lovers sigh their vows.—If sleep should take ye,
that, no such shifts? there's danger in't, 'tis true;
that spare him, as he gives you something new.

A LL in the Downs the fleet was moor'd,
The streamers waving in the wind,
When black-ey'd Susan came aboard.
Oh! where shall I my true love find!
Tell me, ye jovial failors, tell me true.
If my sweet William sails among the crew.

II.

William, who high upon the yard,
Rock'd with the billow to and fro,
Soon as her well-known voice he heard,
He figh'd, and cast his eyes below:
The cords slide swiftly through his glowing hands,
And (quick as lightning) on the deck he stands.

III.

So the fweet lark, high-pois'd in air,
Shuts close his pinions to his breast,
(If, chance, his mate's shrill call he hear)
And drops at once into her nest.
The noblest captain in the British sleet,
Might envy William's lip those kisses sweet.

IV.

O Susan, Susan, lovely dear,
My vows shall ever true remain;
Let me kiss off that falling tear,
We only part to meet again.
Change, as ye list, ye winds; my heart shall be
The faithful compass that still points to thee.

V.

Believe not what the landmen fay,
Who tempt with doubts thy constant mind:
They'll tell thee, failors, when away,
In ev'ry port a mistress find.
Yes, yes, believe them when they tell thee so,
for thou art present wheresoe'er I go.

VI.

If to fair India's coast we fail,
Thy eyes are seen in di'monds bright.
Thy breath is Afric's spicy gale,
Thy skin is ivory, so white.
Thus ev'ry beauteous object that I view,
Wakes in my soul some charm of lovely Sue.

VII.

Though battle call me from thy arms,
Let not my pretty Susan mourn;
Though canons roar, yet safe from harms,
William shall to his dear return.
Love turns aside the balls that round me sly,
Lest precious tears should drop from Susan's eye.

WHETHER amid the gloom of night I stray, Or my glad eyes enjoy revolving day, Still Nature's various face informs my sense, Of an all-wise, all-powerful Providence.

When the gay fun first breaks the shades of night, And strikes the distant eastern hills with light, Colour returns, the plains their liv'ry wear, And a bright verdure cloaths the smiling year; The blooming flow'rs with op'ning beauties glow, And grazing slocks their mitky sleeces show, The barren cliss with chalky fronts arise, And a pure azure arches o'er the skies. But when the gloomy reign of night returns, Stript of her fading pride all Nature mourns: The trees no more their wonted verdure boast, But weep in dewy tears their beauty lost; No distant landscapes draw our curious eyes, Wrapt in Night's robe the whole creation lyes.

ETERNITY.

I RE the foundations of the world were laid, Ere kindling light th' Almighty word obey'd, Thou wert; and when the subterrara ous flame Shall burft its prison, and devour this frame, From angry Heaven when the keen lightning flies, When fervent heat diffolves the melting skies, Thou still shalt be; still as thou wert before, And know no change, when time thall be no more. O endless thought! divine eternity! Th' immortal foul fhares but a part of thee; For thou wert present when our life began, When the warm dust shot up in breathing man. Ah! what is life? with ills encompass'd round, Amidst our hopes Fate strikes the sudden wound: To-day the statesman of new honour dreams, To-morrow Death destroys his airy schemes; Is mouldy treasure in thy chest confin'd? Think all that treasure thou must leave behind; Thy heir with fmiles shall view thy blazon'd herse, And all thy hoards with lavish hand disperse. Vol. II.

The virtuous foul purfues a nobler aim,
And life regards but as a fleeting dream:
She longs to wake, and wishes to get free,
To launch from earth into eternity.
For while the boundless theme extends our thought,
Ten thousand thousand rolling years are nought.

W HY dost thou fly me? stay, unhappy fair, Seek not these horrid caverns of despair; To trace thy steps the midnight air I bore, Trod the brown desert, and unshelter'd moor: Three times the lark has sung his matin lay, And rose on dewy wing to meet the day, Since first I sound thee, stretch'd in pensive mood, Where laurels border Ladon's silver slood.

DIONE.

O let my foul with grateful thanks o'erflow!

'Tis to thy hand my daily life I owe.

Like the weak lamb you rais'd me-from the plain,

Too faint to bear bleak winds and beating rain;

Each day I share thy bowl and clean repast;

Each night thy roof defends the chilly blass,

But vain is all thy friendship, vain thy care:

Forget a wretch abandon'd to despair.

LAURA.

Despair will fly thee, when thou shalt impart. The fatal secret that torments thy heart;
Disclose thy forrows to my faithful ear;
Instruct these eyes to give thee tear for tear.
Love, love's the eause; our forests speak thy slame,
The rocks have learnt to sigh Evander's name.
If fault'ring shame thy bashful tongue restrain,
If thou hast look'd, and blush'd and sigh'd in vain;
Say, in what grove thy lovely shepherd strays,
Tell me what mountains warble with his lays;
Thither I'll speed me, and with moving art
Draw soft consessions from his melting heart.

DIONE.

Thy gen'rous care has touch'd my fecret woe.
Love bids these scalding tears incessant slow,
Ill-sated love! O say, ye sylvan maids,
Who range wide forests, and sequester'd shades,
Say where Evander bled, point out the ground.
That yet is purple with the savage wound.
Yonder he lyes; I hear the hird of prey;
High o'er those cliss the raven wings his way;
Hark how he croaks! he scents the murder near.
O may no greedy beak his visage tear!
Shield him, ye Cupids; strip the Paphian grove,
And strow unsading myrtle o'er my love!
Down, heaving heart.

LAURA.

Are thus the hopes of constant lovers paid?

If thus—ye Powers, from love defend the maid!

DIONE.

Now have twelve mornings warm'd the purple east, Since my dear hunter rous'd the tusky beast; Swift slew the foaming monster through the wood, Swift as the wind, his eager steps pursu'd: 'Twas then the savage turn'd; then fell the youth, And his dear blood distain'd the barb'rous tooth.

LAURA.

Was there none near? no ready succour found? Nor healing herb to staunch the spouting wound?

DIONE.

In vain through pathless woods the hunters cross'd, And sought with anxious eye their master lost; In vain their frequent hollows echo'd shrill, And his lov'd name was sent from hill to hill; Evander hears you not. He's lost, he's slain, And the pale corse lyes breathless on the plain.

Here gently rest the corse—With fault'ring breath Thus spake Menalcas on the verge of death.

" Belov'd Palemon, hear a dying friend;

- " See, where you hills with craggy brows afcend,
- "Low in the valley where the mountain grows,
- "There first I saw her, there began my woes.
- "When I am cold, may there this clay be laid; "There often strays the dear, the cruel maid.
- "There as she walks, perhaps, you'll hear her fay,
- " (While a kind gushing tear shall force its way)
- " How could my stubborn heart relentless prove?
- " Ah poor Menalcas—all thy fault was love!"

Second SHEPHERD.

When pitying lions o'er a carcass groan, And hungry tygers bleeding kids bemoan; When the lean wolf laments the mangled sheep; Then shall Parthenia o'er Menalcas weep.

^{*} This and the following feene are formed upon the nevel of Marcella in Don Quixote.

Fly then, ye swains, from beauty's surer wound. Such was the sate our poor Menalcas sound!

Second SHEPHERD.

What shepherd does not mourn Menalcas slain? Kill'd by a barb'rous woman's proud disdain! Whoe'er attempts to bend her scornful mind, Cries to the deserts, and pursues the wind.

First SHEPHERD.

With ev'ry grace Menalcas was endow'd,
His merits dazzled all the fylvan crowd.
If you would know his pipe's melodious found,
Ask all the echoes of these hills around,
For they have learn'd his strains; who shall rehearse
The strength, the cadence of his tuneful verse?
Go, read those losty poplars; there you'll find
Some tender sonnet grow on ev'ry rind.

PARTHENIA.

Is love in mine?

If e'er I triffed with a shepherd's pain,

Or with salse hope his passion strove to gain;

Then might you justly curse my savage mind,

Then might you rank me with the serpent kind:

But I ne'er trifled with a shepherd's pain,

Nor with salse hope his passion strove to gain:

'Tis to his rash pursuit he owes his sate;

I was not cruel; he was obstinate,

First SHEPHERD.

Hear this, ye fighing shepherds, and despair, Unhappy Lycidas, thy hour is near! Since the same barb'rous hand hath sign'd thy doom, We'll lay thee in our lov'd Menalcas' tomb,

PARTHENIA.

Why will intruding man my peace destroy? Let me content and folitude enjoy; Free was I born; my freedom to maintain, Early I fought the unambitious plain. Most women's weak resolves, like reeds, will ply, Shake with each breath, and bend with ev'ry figh; Mine, like an oak, whose firm roots deep descend, Nor breath of love can shake, nor figh can bend. If ye, unhappy Lycidas, would fave; Go feek him, lead him to Menalcas' grave; Forbid his eyes with flowing grief to rain, Like him Menalcas wept, but wept in vain; Bid him his heart-confuming groans give o'er: Tell him, I heard fuch piercing groans before, And heard unmov'd. O Lycidas, be wife, Prevent thy fate .- Lo! there Menalcas lies.

First SHEPHERD.

Now all the melancholy rites are paid, And o'er his grave the weeping marble laid; Let's feek our charge; the flocks dispersing wide, Whiten with moving fleece the mountain's side. Trust not, ye swains, the lightning of her eye, Lest ye, like him, should love, despair, and die.

Nature, 'tis true, in ev'ry outward grace,

But if thou search the secrets of her mind,

How did she glory when Menalcas dy'd!

To some far grove retire; her sight disclaim,
Nor with her charms awake the dying slame.

But go not, Lycidas, without thy friend.

And lead the dance among the sportive swains,

Or else the groves discain,

Nor with the sylvan walk indulge thy pain.

Rich with ambrosial scents, the fair to move,

And all the business of the day is love.

There from the gaudy train select a dame,

Her willing glance shall catch an equal slame.

Name not the court.—The thought my foul confounds, And with Dione's wrongs my bosom wounds. Heav'n justly vindicates the faithful maid; And now are all my broken vows repaid. Perhaps she now laments my fancy'd death With tears unseign'd; and thinks my gasping breath Sigh'd forth her name. O guilt, no more upbraid! Yes. I fond innocence and truth betray'd. [Aside. TERE let me rest: and in the liquid glass View with impartial look my fading face. Why are Parthenia's striking beauties priz'd? And why Dione's weaker glance despis'd? Nature in various molds has beauty cast. And form'd the feature for each different tafte : This fights for golden locks and azure eyes; That, for the gloss of fable treffes, dies. Let all mankind these locks, these eyes detell, So I were lovely in Evander's breaft! When o'er the garden's knot we call our view, While summer paints the ground with various huc; Some praise the gaudy tulip's streaky red, And some the filver lilly's bending head : Some the jonquit in thining yellow dreft, And some the fring'd carnation's vari'd velt; Some love the fober vi'let's purple dyes. Thus beauty fares in different lovers eyes. But bright Parthenia like the rofe appears, She in all eyes superior lustre bears.

Seeft thou the waving tops of yonder woods, Whose aged arms imbrown the cooling floods? The cooling floods o'er breaking peebles flow, And wash the soil from the big roots below; From the tall rock the dashing waters bound. Hark, o'er the fields the rushing billows sound! There, lost in thought, and leaning on her crook, Stood the sad nymph, nor rais'd her pensive look; With settled eye the bubbling waves survey'd, And watch'd the whirling eddies as they play'd.

DIONE.

Thither to know my certain doom I speed;
For by this sentence life or death's decreed. [Exit.

CLEANTHES.

The skilful hunter with experienc'd care Traces the doubles of the circling hare; The fubtle fox (who breathes the weary hound O'er hills and plains) in distant brakes is found; With ease we track swift hinds and skipping roes: But who th' inconstant ways of woman knows? They fay, she wanders with the sylvan train, And courts the native freedoms of the plain; Shepherds explain their wish without offence, Nor blush the nymphs; -for Love is innocence. O lead me where the rural youth retreat, Where the slope hills the warbling voice repeat. Perhaps on daify'd turf reclines the maid, And near her fide some rival clown is laid. Yet, yet I love her .- O lost nymph return, Let not thy fire with tears inceffant mourn;

Return, lost nymph; bid forrow cease to flow, And let Dione glad the house of woe.

LAURA.

Call'd he not lost Dione? hence I'll start, Cross his slow steps, and fift his op'ning heart.

[Afide.

CLEANTHES.

Tell me, fair nymph, direct my wand'ring way; Where, in close bowers, to shun the sultry ray, Repose the swains; whose slocks with bleating fill The bord'ring forest and the thymy hill: But if thou frequent join those sylvan bands, Thyself can answer what my soul demands.

LAURA.

Seven years I trod these sields, these bowers, and glades,

And by the lefs'ning and the length'ning shades
Have mark'd the hours; what time my flock to lead
To funny mountains, or the watry mead:
Train'd in the labours of the sylvan crew,
Their sports, retreats, their cares, and loves I knew.

CLEANTHES.

Instruct me then, if late among your race,
A stranger nymph is found, of noble grace,
In rural arts unskill'd, no charge she tends;
Nor when the morn and evining dew descends
Milks the big-udder'd ewe. Her mien and dress
The polish'd manners of the court confess.

Each day arrive the neighb'ring nymphs and fwains To share the pastime of our jovial plains; How can I there thy roving beauty trace, Where not one nymph is bred of vulgar race?

CLEANTHES.

If yet she breathe, what tortures must she find! The curse of disobedience tears her mind. If e'er your breast with filial duty burn'd, If e'er you forrow'd when a parent mourn'd, Tell her, I charge you, with inceffant groans Her drooping fire his absent child bemoans.

LAURA.

Unhappy man!

CLEANTHES.

With ftorms of passion tost, When first he learnt his vagrant child was lost; On the cold floor his trembling limbs he flung, And with thick blows his hollow bosom rung; Then up he started, and with fixt surprise, Upon her picture threw his frantic eyes, While thus he cry'd: " In her my life was bound, " Warm in each feature is her mother found!"

- " Perhaps despair has been her fatal guide,
- " And now she floats upon the weeping tide;
- " Or on the willow hung, with head reclin'd,
- " All pale and cold she wavers in the wind.
- " Did I not force her hence by harsh commands?
- " Did not her foul abhor the nuptial bands ?"

LAURA.

Teach not, ye fires, your daughters to rebel. By counsel reign their wills, but ne'er compel.

CLEANTHES.

Ye duteous daughters, trust these tender guides; Nor think a parent's breast the tyrant hides.

LAURA.

From either lid the scalding forrows roll; The moving tale runs thrilling to my soul.

CLEANTHES.

Perhaps she wanders in the lonely woods, Or on the sedgy borders of the sloods; Thou know'st cach cottage, forest, hill and vale, And pebbled brook that winds along the dale. Search each sequester'd dell to find the fair; And just reward shall gratify thy care.

LAURA.

O ye kind boughs protect the virgin's flight, And guard Dione from his prying fight! [Aside.

CLEANTHES.

Mean while I'll feek the shepherd's cool abodes, Point me, fair nymph, along these doubtful roads.

LAURA.

Seeft thou yon' mountain rear his shaggy brow? In the green valley graze the flocks below:
There ev'ry gale with warbling music floats,
Shade answers shade, and breathes alternate notes.

DIONE.

Thus fhe reply'd, with rage and fcorn poffest:

She still the more disdain'd, the more I prest,

LAURA.

When you were gone, these walks a stranger crost, He turn'd through ev'ry path, and wander'd lost; To me he came; with courteous speech demands Beneath what bowers repos'd the shepherd bands; Then surther asks me, if among that race A shepherdess was found of courtly grace; With proffer'd bribes my faithful tongue essays; But for no bribe the faithful tongue betrays. In me Dione's safe. Far hence he speeds, Where other hills resound with other reeds.

Think, Laura, what thy hasty thoughts perfuade. If I return, to Love a victim made,

LAURA.

Trust a fond father; raise him from despair.

DIONE.

I fly not him; I fly a life of care.
On the high nuptials of the Court look round;
Where shall, alas, one happy pair be found!
There marriage is for servile int'rest fought;
Is love for wealth or power or title bought?
'Tis hence domestic jars their peace destroy,
And loose adult'ry steals the shameful joy.
But search we wide o'er all the blissful plains,
Where love alone, devoid of int'rest, reigns.
What concord in each happy pair appears!
How sondness strengthens with the rolling years!
Superior power ne'er thwarts their soft delights,
Nor jealous accusations wake their nights.

LAURA.

May all those bleffings on Dione fall.

DIONE.

Grant me Evander, and I share them all,

Shall a fond parent give perpetual strife,
And doom his child to be a wretch for life?
Tho' he bequeath'd me all these woods and plains,
And all the slocks the russet down contains;
With all the golden harvests of the year,
Far, as where yonder purple mountains rear;
Can these the broils of nuptial life prevent?
Can these, without Evander, give content?
But see, he comes.

May'st thou the rage of this new slame controul,

Kind rays of hope to chear a doubtful heart?

Pronounce her utmost scorn; I come prepar'd To meet my doom. Say, is my death declar'd?

DIONE.

Why should thy fate depend on woman's will! Forget this tyrant, and be happy still.

LYCIDAS.

Didst thou beseech her not to speed her slight, Nor shun with wrathful glance my hated sight? Will she consent my sighing plaint to hear, Nor let my piercing cries be lost in air?

DIONE.

Can mariners appease the tossing storm,
When foaming waves the yawning deep deform?
When o'er the sable cloud the thunder slies,
Say, who shall calm the terror of the skies?
Who shall the lion's famish'd roar assuage?
And can we still proud woman's stronger rage?
Soon as my faithful tongue pronounc'd thy name,
Sudden her glances shot resentful slame:
Be dumb, she cries, this whining love give o'er,
And vex me with the teazing theme no more.

LYCIDAS.

'Tis pride alone that keeps alive her scorn.

Can the mean swain in humble cottage born,

Can poverty that haughty heart obtain,

Where avarice and strong ambition reign?

If Poverty pass by in tatter'd coat,

Curs vex his heels and stretch their barking throat;

If chance he mingle in the semale croud,

Pride tosses high her head, Scorn laughs aloud;

Each nymph turns from him to her gay gallant,
And wonders at the impudence of Want.

'Tis vanity that rules all woman-kind,
Love is the weakest passion of their mind.

DIONE.

Though one is by those servile views posses'd, O Lycidas, condemn not all the rest.

LYCIDAS.

Though I were bent beneath a load of years. And feventy winters thin'd my hoary hairs; Yet if my olive branches drop'd with oil, And crooked shares were brighten'd in my foil: If lowing herds my fatt'ning meads poffes'd, And my white fleece the tawny mountain drefs'd; Then would she lure me with love-darting glance, Then with fond mercenary fmiles advance. Though hell with ev'ry vice my foul had stain'd. And froward anger in my bosom reign'd, Though avarice my coffers cloath'd in ruft, And my joints trembled with enfeebled lust: Yet were my ancient name with titles great, How would she languish for the gaudy bait! If to her love all-tempting wealth pretend, What virtuous woman can her heart defend?

DIONE.

Conquests, thus meanly bought, men soon despise, And justly slight the mercenary prize.

Still let Alexis' faithful friendship aid,
Once more attempt to bend the stubborn maid.
Tell her, no base-born swain provokes her scorn,
No clown, beneath the sedgy cottage born;
Tell her, for her this sylvan dress I took,
For her my name and pomp of courts forsook;
My losty roofs with golden sculpture shine,
And my high birth descends from ancient line.

DIONE.

Love is a facred voluntary fire,
Gold never bought that pure, that chaste defire;
Who thinks true love for lucre to posses,
Shall grasp false flatt'ry and the feign'd cares;
Can we believe that mean, that servile wise,
Who vilely sells her dear-bought love for life,
Would not her virtue for an hour refign,
If in her fight the proffer'd treasure shine.

LYCIDAS.

Can reason (when by winds swift fires are born O'er waving harvests of autumnal corn) The driving sury of the slame reprove? Who then shall reason with a heart in love!

DIONE.

Yet let me speak; O may my words persuade The noble youth to quit this sylvan maid! Resign thy crook, no more to plains resort, Look round on all the beauties of the court; There shall thy merit find a worthy slame, Some nymph of equal wealth, and equal name. Think, if these offers should thy wish obtain, And should the rustic beauty stoop to gain: Thy heart could ne'er prolong th' unequal fire,
The fudden blaze would in one year expire;
Then thy rash folly thou too late shalt chide,
To Poverty and base-born blood ally'd;
Her vulgar tongue shall animate the strife,
And hourly discord yex thy suture life.

LYCIDAS.

Such is the force thy faithful words impart,
That like the galling goad they pierce my heart.
You think fair virtue in my breast resides,
That honest truth my lips and actions guides:
Deluded shepherd, could you view my foul,
You'd see it with deceit and treach'ry foul;
I'm base, persidious. Ere from court I came,
Love singled from the train a beauteous dame;
The tender maid my fervent vows believ'd,
My fervent vows the tender maid deceiv'd.
Why dost thou tremble?—why thus heave thy sighs?
Why steal the silent forrows from thy eyes?

DIONE.

Sure the foft lamb hides rage within his break, And cooing turtles are with hate posses'd; When from so sweet a tongue flow fraud and lies, And those meek looks a perjur'd heart disguise. Ah! who shall now on faithless man depend? The treach'rous lover proves as salse a friend.

LYCIDAS.

When with Dione's love my bosom glow'd,
Firm constancy and truth sincere I vow'd;
But since Parthenia's brighter charms were known,
My love, my constancy and truth are slown.

Vol. II.

DIONE.

Are not thy hours with conscious anguish stung? Swift vengeance must o'ertake the perjur'd tongue. The gods the cause of injur'd love affert, And arm with stubborn pride Parthenia's heart.

LYCIDAS.

Go, try her; tempt her with my birth and state; Stronger ambition will subdue her hate.

DIONE.

O rather turn thy thoughts on that lost maid,
Whose hourly sighs thy faithless oath upbraid!
Think you behold her at the dead of night,
Plac'd by the glimm'ring taper's paly light,
With all your letters spread before her view,
While trickling tears the tender lines bedew;
Sobbing she reads the perj'ries o'er and o'er,
And her long nights know peaceful sleep no more.

Let me forget her.

DIONE.

O false youth, relent;
Think should Parthenia to thy hopes consent;
When Hymen joins your hands, and music's voice
Makes the glad echoes of thy domes rejoice,
Then shall Dione force the crowded hall,
Kneel at thy feet, and loud for justice call:
Could you behold her weltering on the ground,
The purple dagger reeking from the wound?
Could you unmov'd this dreadful sight survey?
Such fatal seenes shall stain the bridal day.

LYCIDAS.

The horrid thought finks deep into my foul, And down my cheek unwilling forrows roll,

DIONE.

From this new flame you may as yet recede:
Or have you doom'd that guiltless maid shall bleed?

LYCIDAS.

Name her no more.-Hafte, feek the fylvan fair.

DIONE.

Should the rich proffer tempt her list'ning ear, Bid all your peace adieu. O barb'rous youth, Can you forego your honour, love, and truth? Yet should Parthenia wealth and title slight, Would justice then restore Dione's right? Would you then dry her ever-falling tears, And bless with honest love your future years?

LYCIDAS.

I'll in yon shade thy wish'd return attend;
Come, quickly come, and cheer thy sighing friend.

[Exit Lycidas.

DIONE.

Should her proud foul refift the tempting bait,
Should the contemn his proffer'd wealth and state,
Then I once more his perjur'd heart may move,
And in his bosom wake the dying love.
As the pale wretch involv'd in doubts and sears,
All trembling in the judgment-hall appears;
So shall I stand before Parthenia's eyes,
For as the dooms, Dione lives or dies.

While easy dreams compose her penceful foul, What anxious cares within my bosom roll! If tir'd with fighs beneath the beech I lye, And languid flumber close my weeping eye Her lovely vision rises to my view, Swift flies the nymph, and swift would I pursue: I strive to call, my tongue has lost its found; Like rooted oaks, my feet benumb'd are bound : Struggling I wake. Now flames the western sky with golden beams, And the ray kindles on the quiv'ring streams; Long slights of crows, high-croaking from their food, Now seek the nightly covert of the wood; The tender grass with dewy crystal bends, And gath'ring vapour from the heath ascends. Shake off this downy rest; wake, gentle maid, Trust not thy charms beneath the noxious shade. Parthenia, rise.

PARTHENIA.

Away. Approach not. Hah! Alexis there! Let us together to the vales descend, And to the folds our bleating charge attend; But let me hear no more that shepherd's name, Vex not my quiet with his hateful slame.

DIONE

Can I behold him gasping on the ground,
And seek no healing herb to staunch the wound?
For thee continual sighs consume his heart,
'Tis you alone can cure the bleeding smart.
Once more I come the moving cause to plead,
If still his suff'rings cannot intercede,
Yet let my friendship do his passion right,
And show thy lover in his native light.

PARTHENIA.

Why in dark myst'ry are thy words involv'd?
If Lycidas you mean; know, I'm resolv'd.

DIONE.

Let not thy kindling rage my words restrain.

Know then, Parthenia slights no vulgar swain.

For thee he bears the scrip and sylvan crook,

For thee the glories of a court forsook.

May not thy heart the wealthy slame decline!

His honours, his possessions, all are thine.

If (when the market to the city calls)
We chance to pass beside his palace walls, Does not his hall with music's voice resound, And the stoor tremble with the dancer's bound? Such are the pleasures Lycidas shall give, When thy relenting bosom bids him live.

PARTHENIA.

See yon gay goldfinch hop from fpray to fpray,
Who fings a farewell to the parting day;
At large he flies o'er hill, and dale, and down;
Is not each bush, each spreading tree his own?
And canst thou think he'll quit his native brier,
For the bright cage o'er-arch'd with golden wire?
What then are honours, pomp, and gold to me?
Are those a price to purchase liberty?

DIONE.

Think, when the Hymeneal torch shall blaze, And on the solemn rites the virgins gaze; When thy fair locks with glitt'ring gems are grac'd, And the bright zone shall sparkle round thy waist, How will their hearts with envious forrow pine, When Lycidas shall join his hand to thine!

PARTHENIA.

And yet, Alexis, all that pomp and show
Are oft' the varnish of internal woe.
When the chaste lamb is from her sisters led,
And interwoven garlands paint her head;
The gazing slock, all envious of her pride,
Behold her skipping by the priestes' side;
Each hopes the flow'ry wreath with longing eyes;
While she, alas! is led to facrifice!
Thus walks the bride in all her state array'd,
The gaze and envy of each thoughtless maid.

DIONE.

As yet her tongue refists the tempting snare, And guards my panting bosom from despair. [Aside. Can thy strong soul this noble slame forego? Must such a lover waste his life in woc?

PARTHENIA.

Tell him, his gifts I scorn; not all his act,
Not all his flatt'ry, shall seduce my heart.
Courtiers, I know, are disciplin'd to cheat,
Their infant lips are taught to lisp deceit;
To prey on easy nymphs they range the shade,
And vainly boast of innocence betray'd;
Chaste hearts, unlearn'd in falsehood, they assait,
And think our ear will drink the grateful tale:
No. Lycidas shall ne'er my peace destroy,
I'll guard my virtue, and content enjoy.

DIONE.

So strong a passion in my bosom burns,
Whene'er his soul is griev'd, Alexis mourns!

Canst thou this importuning ardour blame?
Would not thy tongue for friendship urge the same?

PARTHENIA.

Yes, blooming swain. You show an honest mind: I fee it, with the purest flame refin'd. Who shall compare Love's mean and gross defire To the chaste zeal of Friendship's facred fire? By whining love our weakness is confest; But stronger friendship shows a virtuous breast. In Folly's heart the short-liv'd blaze may glow, Wisdom alone can purer friendship know. Love is a fudden blaze which foon decays. Friendship is like the sun's eternal rays; Not daily benefits exhaust the slame. It still is giving, and still burns the same; And could Alexis from his foul remove All the low images of groffer love; Such mild, fuch gentle looks thy heart declare, Fain would my breast thy faithful friendship share.

DIONE.

How dare you in the diff'rent fex confide?

And feek a friendship which you ne'er have try'd?

PARTHENIA.

Say, shepherd, when you proffer'd wealth and state, Did not her scorn and suppled pride abate?

DIONE.

As fparkling di'monds to the feather'd train, Who scrape the winnow'd chaff in search of grain; Such to the shepherdess the court appears: Content she seeks, and spurns those glitt'ring cares.

LYCIDAS.

"Tis not in woman grandeur to despise;
"Tis not from courts, from me alone she slies.
Did not my passion suffer like disgrace,
While she believ'd me born of sylvan race?
Dost thou not think, this proudest of her kind
Has to some rival swain her heart resign'd?

DIONE.

No rival shepherd her disdain can move; Her frozen bosom is averse to love.

LYCIDAS.

Say, art thou fure, that this ungrateful fair Scorns all alike, bids all alike despair?

DIONE

How can I know the secrets of her heart?

LYCIDAS.

Answer fincere, nor from the question flart :

Say, in her glance was never love confest, And is no swain distinguish'd from the rest?

DIONE.

O Lycidas, bid all thy troubles cease; Let not a thought on her disturb thy peace. May Justice bid thy former passion wake; Think how Dione suffers for thy sake: Let not a broken oath thy honour stain, Recal thy vows, and seek the town again.

LYCIDAS.

What means Alexis? where's thy friendship flown? Why am I banish'd to the hateful town? Hath some new shepherd warm'd Parthenia's breast? And does my love his am'rous hours molest? Is it for this thou bid'st me quit the plain? Yes, yes, thou fondly lov'st this rival swain. When first my cheated soul thy friendship woo'd, To my warm heart I took the vip'rous brood. O false Alexis!

DIONE.

— Why am I accus'd?
Thy jealous mind is by weak fears abus'd.

LYCIDAS.

Was not thy bosom fraught with false design?
Didst thou not plead his cause, and give up mine?
Let not thy tongue evasive answer seek;
The conscious crimson rises on thy cheek:
Thy coward conscience, by thy guist dismay'd,
Shakes in each joint, and owns that I'm betray'd.

DIONE, LAURA.

LAURA.

Why hangs a cloud of grief upon thy brows? Does the proud nymph accept Evander's vows!

DIONE.

Can I bear life with these new pangs opprest!

Again he tears me from his faithless breast?

A perjur'd lover first he sought these plains,

And now my friendship like my love disdains.

As I new offers to Parthenia made,

Conceal'd he stood behind the woodbine shade.

He says, my treach'rous tongue his heart betray'd,

That my salse speeches have mis-led the maid;

With groundless sear he thus his soul deceives;

What frenzy dictates, jealousy believes.

LAURA.

Refign thy crook, put off this manly vest, And let the wrong'd Dione stand confest; When he shall learn what forrows thou hast born, And find that nought relents Parthenia's foorn, Sure he will pity thee.

DIONE.

-No, Laura, no.

Should I, alas! the fylvan dress forego,
Then might he think that I her pride foment,
That injur'd love instructs me to resent;
Our secret enterprize might fatal prove:
Man slies the plague of persecuting love.

LAURA.

Avoid Parthenia; lest his rage grow warm, And jealoufy resolve some satal harm.

DIONE.

O Laura, if thou chance the youth to find,
Tell him what torments vex my auxious mind.
Should I once more his awful presence seek,
The filent tears would bathe my glowing cheek;
By rising sighs my fault'ring voice be stay'd,
And trembling fear too soon confess the maid.
Haste, Laura, then; his vengeful soul assuage,
Tell him, I'm guiltless; cool his blinded rage;
Tell him that truth sincere my friendship brought,
Let him not cherish one suspicious thought.
Then to convince him, his distrust was vain,
I'll never, never see that nymph again.
This way he went.

LAURA.

The star of evining sheds his filver light

High o'er you western hill: the cooling gales'
Fresh odours breathe along the winding dales;
Far from their home as yet our shepherds stray,
To close with chearful walk the sultry day.
Methinks from far I hear the piping swain;
Hark, in the breeze now swells, now finks the strain!
Thither I'll seek him.

DIONE.

While this length of glade
Shall lead me pensive through the fable shade;
Where on the branches murmur rushing winds,
Grateful as falling floods to love-sick minds.
O may this path to death's dark vale descend!
There only, can the wretched hope a friend.

ACT V. SCENE I.

A Wood.

DIONE, CLEANTHES, (who lies wounded in a distant part of the stage.)

DIONE.

THE moom ferene now climbs th' aerial way;
See, at her fight ten thousand stars decay:
With trembling gleam she tips the filent grove,
While all beneath the chequer'd shadows move.
Turn back thy filver axles, downward roll,
Darkness best fits the horrors of my soul.
Rise, rise, ye clouds; the face of heav'n deform,
Veil the bright goddess in a sable storm;

250

O look not down upon a wretched maid! Let thy bright torch the happy lover aid, And light his wand'ring footsteps to the bower Where the kind nymph attends th' appointed hour. Yet thou hast feen unhappy love, like mine; Did not thy lamp in heav'n's blue forehead shine, When Thifbe fought her love along the glade? Didft thou not then behold the gleaming blade, And gild the fatal point that stabb'd her break? Soon I, like her, shall feek the realms of rest. Let groves of mournful yew a wretch furround! O footh my ear with melancholy found! The village curs now firetch their velling throat, And dogs from diffant cotts return the note: The rav'nous wolf along the valley prowls, And with his famith'd cries the mountain howls. But hark! what fudden noise advances near? Repeated groans alarm my frighted ear!

CLEANTHES.

Shepherd, approach; ah! fly not through the glade. A wretch all dy'd with wounds invokes thy aid.

DIONE.

Say then, unhappy stranger, how you bled; Collect thy spirits, raise thy drooping head. [Cleanthes raises himself on his arm.

O horrid fight! Cleanthes gasping lyes; And death's black shadows float before his eyes. Unknown in this disguise, I'll check my woe, And learn what bloody hand has struck the blow.

[Afide.

Say, youth, ere fate thy feeble voice confounds,
What led thee hither? whence these purple wounds?

CLEANTHES.

Stay, fleeting life; may strength a while prevail. Lest my clos'd lips confine th' imperfect tale. Ere the ftreak'd East grew warm with amber ray, I from the city took my doubtful way, Far o'er the plains I fought a beauteous maid, Who from the court, in these wide forests stray'd, Wanders unknown; as I, with weary pain, Try'd ev'ry path, and opening glade, in vain; A band of thieves, forth-rushing from the wood, Unsheath'd their daggers warm with daily blood; Deep in my breast the barb'rous steel is dy'd, And purple hands the golden prey divide. Hence are these mangling wounds. Say, gentle swain, If thou hast known among the sylvan train The vagrant nymph I feek? or establishment outlier begin the confidence

DIONE.

What mov'd thy care, Thus, in these pathless wilds to search the fair?

CLEANTHES.

I charge you, O ye daughters of the grove, Ye Naiads, who the mosly fountains love, Ye happy swains, who range the pastures wide, Ye tender nymphs, who feed your flocks beside; If my last gasping breath can pity move, If e'er ye knew the pangs of slighted love, Show her, I charge you, where Cleanthes died; The grass yet recking with the sanguine tide. A father's power to me the virgin gave, But she disdain'd to live a nuptial slave; So sled her native home. Sp Co Co

While on my heart death's frozen hand is laid!
Go, seek her, guide her where Cleanthes bled;
When she furveys her lover pale and dead,
Tell her, that since she fled my hateful sight,
Without remorfe I sought the realms of night.
Methinks I see her view these poor remains,
And on her cheek indecent gladness reigns!
Full in her presence cold Cleanthes lyes,
And not one tear stands trembling in her eyes!

See, at thy feet Cleanthes bath'd in blood! For love of thee he trod this lonely wood; Thou art the cruel auth'ress of his fate; He falls by thine, thou, by Evander's hate. When shall my foul know rest? Cleanthes slain, No longer fighs and weeps for thy difdain. Thou still art curst with love. Bleed, virgin, bleed. How shall a wretch from anxious life be freed! Still sate is in my reach. From mountains high,
Deep in whose shadow craggy ruins ly,
Can I not headlong sling this weight of woe,
And dash out life against the slints below?

Where my last breath may bubble on the tide?
No. Life shall never slatter me again,
Nor shall to-morrow bring new sighs and pain.
